

Pedestrians with a goal

Some walk for enjoyment, some for exercise and some because they can't ride but this group on Highway 50 west of LaMonte Friday morning walks with a goal. They are part of the Continental Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice. They started Jan. 31 in San Francisco and expect to arrive in Washington, D.C. in October.

Disarmament, social justice

Walking for a cause

Only after first speaking softly of Mahatma Gandhi's tranquil triumph in India 30 years ago and the civil rights struggles in Selma during the early 1960's did deeply-tanned Tom MacLean get around to discussing in detail his own personal cause in 1976—peace and personal equality in a weapons-free world.

"It's important to put things in perspective," explained MacLean as he rested his bare feet Thursday at Sacred Heart cafeteria and talked of The Continental Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice. "What we are all a part of, that is those of us in the walk, has been a part of the world since man began. What we are hoping for now is the universal application in our world of non-violent principals... by breaking down institutional rigidities which have developed in many societies including our own."

MacLean started his trans-continental trek Jan. 31 in San Francisco with about 25 fellow-believers. Along the way, they have been joined temporarily in their odyssey by residents of communities through which they have passed. After spending Thursday night near Warrensburg, they planned to arrive in Sedalia sometime late Friday afternoon. As members of the advance guard, MacLean and three other walkers were transported to town Thursday to double-check accommodations and meet newsmen. They will spend the night at Sacred Heart School before continuing east toward their destination of Washington, D.C.

MacLean, a World War II veteran and former chemist from Seattle, Wash., was most critical of the arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union "because racism, sexism and age discrimination seem to come from the same base—a top-heavy force so caught up in militaristic goals and spending that ordinary people feel impotent when it comes to their government. They feel so detached from the decision-making process."

Nonviolent resistance, such as that used by Gandhi to liberate India from Great Britain in the 1940's and advocated by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is the all-encompassing alternative to militaristic might, MacLean said.

"This involves not only a national defense, but a personal defense," MacLean said. "By practicing such an approach,

Little worry over Viking mishap

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking officials believe they have diagnosed, and can easily solve, a malfunction on the Mars lander that caused its soil-scooping arm to jam.

If their theory of the failure is correct, Project Manager Jim Martin said Thursday night, the beginning of the Mars life search next Wednesday will not be affected.

Martin said the telescoping arm, which was designed to reach out for a handful of Martian soil and dump it in a small biology laboratory, jammed Thursday after being extended for a test.

It jammed while being retracted, he said, apparently because a locking pin that should have fallen free did not do so.

He said that was the "most probable cause" of the trouble. The cure, which will be tried Sunday, is to command the robot lander to extend the arm again until the pin falls to the ground.

If that was indeed the cause, said Martin, it is likely that there will be no effect on the mission "and we will be able to continue on our present timeline."

A special team of trouble shooters came up with the theory after duplicating the problem on an identical Viking lander that sits in a sandbox at Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Martin described the failure as a "human error." He said the lander's computer had been fed — long before Viking I arrived on Mars — with an erroneous command. As a result, the telescoping arm did not extend far enough to let the pin fall away.

Martin said there had been no progress on two other problems plaguing the lander's investigation of the red, rocky surface on which it landed Tuesday.

One was the seismometer, designed to monitor marsquakes, which never recovered from the dormant state it remained in during Viking's journey from Earth. But it was too soon to write it off, officials said.

Communications with the lander over 212 million miles of space were somewhat limited by a balky transmitter on the lander. As a result of the undiagnosed malfunction, data were being received for a shorter time each day than had appeared possible at first.

One result could be, said Martin, "that we won't be able to take as many pictures as we had planned."

Engineers were still working on those problems. They were also continuing to study the sampler arm failure, because if the locking pin theory turns out not to be the cause, there may be some other cause that would be harder to fix and could affect the life search.

Irish police have no leads

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish police say they have no leads to the killers of British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs, despite the arrest of 13 suspected members of the Irish Republican Army.

Nobody has claimed responsibility for the bombing Wednesday that killed Ewart-Biggs and a woman secretary and wounded British official Brian Cubbon and an Irish driver. But "we have no doubt it was the IRA," one government official said.

"We've made no substantial progress so far," said a police spokesman as 4,000 policemen and troops pressed a nationwide dragnet.

The search turned up 3½ tons of IRA explosives and ammunition in a forest outside Kilkenny, south of Dublin. It was one of the biggest IRA dumps found in the Irish republic, but police sources said there was no indication the 200 pounds of ammunition that blew up the ambassador's car came from there.

Three men were arrested in that raid.

The other 10 men being questioned were rounded up in Dublin. They included David O'Connell, a schoolteacher reputed to have been a commander of the IRA's Provisional wing.

The police set up a confidential telephone system for informers but would not say whether this had produced anything useful. The government has offered $36,000 for information leading to the capture of the killers.

A senior police officer said it is believed that the assassins posed as an electrical repair crew when they planted the explosives in a drain under the road about 150 feet from the gates to the ambassador's residence. The bomb was exploded by remote control as the embassy limousine drove over it Wednesday morning.

An official source said the killing of the ambassador would result in intensification of the campaign the government has been waging for several years against IRA guerrillas using the republic as a base for their war against British and Protestant rule in Northern Ireland.

Odell said the animal's intestines and stomach were completely devoid of food and revealed the presence of a parasite. He said conditions were similar in 25 spinner dolphins that died in a mass beaching 50 miles farther north last week.

The false killer whale, a relatively friendly mammal, normally stays in deep water.

By Thursday night, at least 25 of the whales in the offshore herd had been coaxed through Captiva Pass and into the Gulf of Mexico. It was hoped they would survive in the open sea.

The four whales which survived the beaching were loaded by a 15-man crew onto stretchers and put aboard a 75-foot boat for the first leg of a trip to Sea World, an marine attraction in Orlando, for study and treatment.

SALT deadlocked over new weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S. disarmament agency said today some progress has been made in arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union but the negotiations remain deadlocked in the area of control of new weapons systems.

During testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Fred Ikle was asked by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., "Are we getting anywhere in SALT?"

"We are making progress, albeit slow," Ikle replied.

The disarmament agency head said negotiators had made progress in control of offensive ballistic missiles but had failed to overcome basic differences in control of new systems such as the Soviet Backfire Bomber and the U.S. Cruise missile.

Ikle said he would supply the committee with a report on progress toward control of ballistic missiles.

Ikle, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, appeared before the committee to testify on proposed legislation that would block shipments of U.S. technology and reactors to countries that have not signed the International Nonproliferation Treaty.

During his testimony he confirmed a published report that U.S. assistance had been instrumental in enabling India to explode a nuclear device in 1974.

"There's considerable truth in it," he replied when asked about the report. "There is no question we have been had with some of our assistance."

Ikle said the assistance to India dated back to the 1950s and that U.S. officials had failed to see the technological possibilities.

Ikle refused to rule out continued nuclear assistance to India, but said ways were being studied to ensure that India could not accumulate fissionable material that could be converted to weaponry.

Symington is author of a provision enacted into law that requires the United States to cut off all aid to any country that imports or exports nuclear technology without proper safeguards.

While nearly 100 countries are parties to the treaty, a number of nations believed to have the potential to acquire nuclear weapons have not signed the pact. These include India, which conducted a nuclear explosion in 1974, Israel, South Africa, Pakistan, Brazil, Argentina and Spain. Also, France and China, both nuclear-weapons countries, have not signed.

Ikle told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the most promising solution to the problem of accumulation of reprocessed plutonium is for the United States to require countries to return the irradiated fuel that is used to power American reactors sold abroad.

He said this is especially true in the case of India, which U.S. officials have said used American technology and a possibly crucial chemical ingredient for its atomic explosion. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission currently is considering an Indian application for enriched uranium, for its power station at Tarapur.

Opponents of exporting U.S. uranium to India said such shipments would help India add to its stockpile of plutonium, a byproduct that India can use to fashion nuclear weapons.

Ford campaign ploy may have backfired

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

The chairman of the Mississippi Republican party, angered by the tactics of President Ford's partisans, says their efforts to woo delegates in the state may have backfired and reduced support for Ford.

Criticizing the efforts on Ford's behalf, Clarke Reed said Thursday that Ford may have less support in the delegation today than he did just two days ago.

Reed said pressure from Ford backers included suggestions that Ronald Reagan would settle for a vice presidential nomination.

Mississippi holds the largest single bloc of uncommitted delegates available in the Ford-Reagan race for the GOP presidential nomination. Sixty Mississippi delegates and alternates will meet in Jackson Sunday, but plans to seek a preference vote to determine who will receive the 30 delegate votes have been set aside.

Reagan telephoned Ford campaigner Gil Carmichael of Meridian, Miss., on Thursday and told him to stop telling delegates that Reagan is considering a vice presidential position.

Carmichael said that in four days of heavy telephone lobbying he and other Ford supporters told delegates only that they believed a Ford-Reagan ticket was possible. But Reed said Carmichael had been telling delegates a Ford-Reagan ticket was sanctioned by Reagan.

"That tactic itself has worked against Ford," Reed said. "Ford may have less support now than he had two days ago."

Reed, Carmichael and Reagan supporters in Mississippi had said this week that Ford's support was rising. But Reed said the first unofficial poll of delegates taken Thursday by the party's organization indicates Reagan nearly has a majority and leads Ford.

After Carmichael said he would not ask for a vote during a meeting of delegates Sunday as he had said he might do, Reed said Ford supporters may be backing off.

Mysterious ailment studied

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Marine scientists are trying to identify a mysterious ailment that drove five whales to strand themselves onto a Gulf coast beach. Meanwhile, boaters are keeping watch over the rest of the herd to keep them from doing the same.

Five false killer whales, porpoise-like mammals weighing 1,000-2,000 pounds, swam ashore Thursday at Captiva Island near here.

The Florida Marine Patrol, helped by local townsfolk armed with towels, buckets and beach umbrellas, worked 12 hours in shallow water to save four of the whales by keeping them upright, rubbing them with lanolin and pouring water over them.

Dr. Daniel Odell of the University of Miami performed an autopsy on the one whale that could not be saved.

Common worship book for Lutherans sought

NEW YORK (AP) — The 16th century Protestant reformer, Martin Luther, said he put the Bible in the people's language so God could speak to them, and also put hymns in the people's language so they could speak to God.

That use of the vernacular tongue in Christian worship no longer distinguishes Protestants from Roman Catholics, who began the practice 10 years ago, but Luther's heirs — the Lutherans — still are tuning up the vocalizing to God — their songs.

The aim is to "enliven our worship," says the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America, which this week opened its eight-day biennial convention in Boston.

The 3.1-million-member denomination is the first of three major Lutheran bodies in this country to take up a proposed new joint worship book and hymnal, drawn up in nine years' work by an inter-Lutheran commission.

The goal, projected for completion in 1978, is the first common worship book for all three major branches of Lutherans — nearly 9 million of them.

Not all has been harmony in the task, however, even in choosing the songs to include. But the experts have made some concessions to popular tastes in an effort to achieve it.

The hymns should be doctrinally sound, observes Dr. Marshall, but he adds, "As someone has said, 'People sing only in the shower and in church' — so hymns must also be singable."

In response to congregational surveys, several popular hymns not originally included have been added, such as "Onward Christian Soldiers," "What A Friend we Have in Jesus" and "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus."

Also added, in response to popular demand, were some gospel songs such as "Amazing Grace" and "How Great Thou Art," made popular by Billy Graham's crusades, and some contemporary songs such as "Let us Break Bread Together on Our Knees."

However, some widely liked hymns weren't chosen, including "Rise Up, O Men of God."

It was the only one of the 50 hymns most frequently used by Lutherans not included. Reasons given for ruling it out were its male-dominated sexist language and its theologically incorrect phrases saying the church is "unequal to its task" and that the people "make it great."

The new compilation of 510 hymns retains two-thirds of the 315 hymns in the present hymnbook of 1958.

Hard times

Los Angeles residents are not well known for their ability to cope with rain, so seldom has it come recently. But a light shower seemed to catch everyone unprepared. A few umbrellas were seen, but most improvised with whatever was handy, including, from top left, a paper box, newspaper, handbag, a coat and a sheet of paper. The "storm" lasted barely an hour and left only a trace amount of moisture.

Rescue reflects Jewish principles

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Old, primordial religious drives in Judaism had a modern counter-part in the recent extraordinary rescue of 100 hostages from threatened death by airline bandits in Uganda's airport.

"A miracle," many Jews called it.

"God showed anew, 'I save my people,'" says Rabbi Bernard Twersky of Manhattan. "He was the field marshal of that operation."

Not that it involved any suspension of natural law, but some saw it both as an exemplification of basic Jewish principles, and a present-day reflection of Judaism's fundamental revelation — God's liberation of Jews from ancient captivity in Egypt.

"O give thanks to the Lord," went a reading of the 107th Psalm in Israel's parliament at a specially called session the morning after the 5,000-mile rescue operation the night of July 3. "... He delivered them from their distress."

This is the underlying heartbeat of Biblical faith — that God cares and manifests it in human history through the force for justice, for saving the victimized, a Divine concern first recognized in the miraculous deliverance from ancient Egypt.

Both Jews and Christians find signals of that transcendent power in the continued unfolding of the human story.

"The exodus was the prototype, the pattern," says Rabbi Dr. Walter S. Wurzbarger, president of the Rabbinical Council of America.

But other events through time are seen as extending that saving process — as in the swift plucking of the hostages from peril in Uganda.

"In a certain sense, there are parallels," says Rabbi Wurzbarger. "Any event which reveals to man God's involvement in history and His aid in saving the oppressed is in a sense a reenactment of the exodus."

Rabbi Wurzbarger, professor of Jewish philosophy at Yeshiva University and leader of Congregation Shaaray Tefila in Queens, was in Israel at the time of the rescue.

"The reaction was utter elation and joy — sheer euphoria," he said. "Many people did feel that this amazing rescue, because of its spectacular nature, could only be explained in terms of a Divine miracle — that God's hand was in it."

Besides being seen as analogous in a way to the exodus, as was the regathering of Jews in Israel when the nation was established in 1948, the saving of the hostages also mirrored a prime Jewish duty.

"Pidyon Shevuyim," the Hebrew injunction puts it, meaning "Redeem the captives." Rabbi Wurzbarger noted that "Jewish religious law stipulates that the highest priority must be assigned to rescuing the captives."

Catholic school decline smaller

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Enrollment in Roman Catholic elementary and secondary schools dropped 47,042 in 1975 to 3,372,701, but the year's decline was less than 1 per cent, as it has been for three years.

Officials say the smaller decline indicates a leveling off trend in a 10-year drop since 1965, a decade in which enrollment in church elementary and secondary schools fell 2,109,653.

Joint service set

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bishops and priests of the Episcopal and Polish Catholic churches are planning a joint Holy Communion service in October to mark the 30th anniversary of the intercommunion concordat between the two denominations.

Workshop on child care scheduled here

The West Central Missouri Day Care Association will sponsor a workshop on child management from 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday at the Farm and Home building, Fourth and Osage.

Jim Freedabauch, a child psychologist and state director of education for Head Start, will lead the workshop.

The association is composed of day care providers, including staff, from licensed day care centers and group homes in this area, including those in Odessa, Holden, Higginsville, Lexington, Marshall, Versailles, Warsaw, Clinton, Osceola and Sedalia.

Persons seeking more information about the workshop are asked to call Mrs. Freda Swope, licensing representative for area day care facilities, at 826-0518.

20 million in U.S. involved in cults

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty million Americans are involved in "fringe religious cults" such as spiritualism, Hare Krishna and Scientology, says a University of Chicago anthropologist.

Irving Zaretsky, after a 10-year study of the fringe religious phenomenon, says the number may be larger, since participation often is an "occasional 'one-shot' experience." He says the cults often are effective in getting people off drugs, and helping those who have gotten too far out to fit back into traditional social patterns.

Exile student ban is criticized

WATERLOO, Ont. (AP) — The American Theological Library Association has criticized the library of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, the main seminary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, for barring students of a break-away Seminary in Exile from using the library facilities, although allowing students of other denominational seminaries to do so.

Hospital faces malpractice suit from woman

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Moline Acres woman has filed a $3.25 million malpractice suit against a St. Louis Hospital and two doctors, alleging they allowed life support devices to be disconnected from a patient who later died.

The suit filed in St. Louis Circuit court by Mrs. Carol Klimek on behalf of her 11-year-old daughter Debbie Kay, charges that her ex-husband, Kenny, 33, was still legally and medically alive, when doctors pulled the plug on his respirator July 22, 1975.

Named as defendants in the suit filed Wednesday are the Firmin Desloge Hospital of St. Louis University, Dr. Simon Horenstein of the hospital staff and Dr. Jack C. Cochran, a medical resident at the hospital.

At issue is the discrepancy between death as it is defined medically and death as it is defined legally in Missouri.

David Challoner, dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine said Klimek met the Harvard death criteria, based on such measures as lack of brain waves, absence of spontaneous breathing and response to pain, having no eye movement and unconsciousness.

The suit said Klimek "still manifested respiration, heart beat, pulse, blood pressure and other vital signs." He was admitted to the hospital July 13, suffering from convulsions and a cerebral hemorrhage.

New law would spell change in schedule

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri would have to institute a fulltime legislature if a stiff conflict of interest law like the one that cleared the House last session was ever enacted, according to the chairman of a special state Senate committee.

"Otherwise, you are going to have only the wealthy running for office, those who are retired and those who can use a revocable blind trust," retiring Sen. Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said Thursday.

The special committee, established to review and make recommendations on revision of the state's conflict of interest laws, set up its schedule of business for the remainder of the year at its first meeting. Spradling said he hoped the panel's work would result in a recommended comprehensive revision of all state conflict of interest statutes that will be acceptable to a majority of the groups affected.

"The question is just how far we are going to go," Spradling said. "Does Missouri want a fulltime legislature and if it does the people are going to have to pay for a fulltime legislature."

He claimed that last session's House bill, sponsored by Kansas City Democrat James Baker, would have had the effect of driving qualified people from public office because of its stringent disclosure requirements.

He claimed that under such a bill, persons seeking public office would be forced to stop working at other jobs and serve as public officials fulltime. Spradling also said that other states with similar laws do have fulltime legislatures and "pay them handsomely."

The committee's schedule calls for hearings with witnesses from local governments and boards, the governing boards of state colleges and universities and state officials. The panel was also authorized on Thursday to hire a law school professor from the University of Missouri to review all statutory provisions concerning conflict of interest for public officials.

With different provisions covering different categories of officials, the committee wants its proposed recommendation to include repeal of all those varying statutes so the revised law will cover all officials.

Committee member Richard Webster, R-Carhage, stressed that any revision in state ethics laws must include some means of monitoring lobbying activities before state agencies.

"Lobbying that takes place in administrative agencies over regulations is totally invisible," Webster said. "Lobbyists don't care what goes in to a bill as long as they can control who writes the regulations."

Lobbyists before the General Assembly last session spent more than $320,000 to influence legislative decisions.

Bishop is again assigned to state

Bishop Robert E. Goodrich Jr. has been re-assigned as bishop of the Missouri United Methodist Churches for another four-year term.

His re-assignment and the assignment of four newly-elected bishops were made recently during the South Central Jurisdictional Conference of The United Methodist Church in Lincoln, Neb.

Vandals strike Municipal airport

Vandals broke 28 runway and tee lightbulbs at Sedalia Municipal Airport sometime overnight Wednesday, it was reported to police. Jim Abbas, airport manager, reported the bulbs were valued at $125. Carol Knight, 1112 Ware Ave., reported the theft of $40 in cigarettes and clothing from her car between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday while it was parked at McGraw-Edison Co., 305 North State Fair Blvd. Knight reported the car was not locked.

Mrs. Robert L. Horton, Kansas City, reported the theft of a gray suitcase from her car June 7, while was parked at Burger Chef, 2909 West Broadway. The suitcase and its contents were valued at $97.50. Horton reported her car was locked, but the windows were rolled down about two inches. Police were still investigating Thursday night the theft of almost $500 worth of tools and a tool box from the home of Everett Pottorff, 816 East 16th. Pottorff told police he left his home about 5 p.m. Wednesday and returned at 10 p.m. to find the items were missing. A carburetor, valued at $70, was stolen from a car parked on the storage lot for Ed's Standard Station, 1403 East Broadway. The lot is located at Third and Hancock. The theft occurred sometime between Tuesday and Thursday. Robert Banning, 2422 West Second, reported the theft of two hoses and five Wifes from his car's engine between 8:15 p.m. Thursday and 1:30 a.m. Friday while it was parked at Seventh and Washington. The items were valued at $15.

Christians unleash barrage before Red Cross evacuation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An International Red Cross team entered the besieged Tal Zaatar refugee camp in Beirut for the first time today on a mercy mission to help evacuate more than 1,000 wounded Palestinians. But Lebanese Christians loosed a heavy barrage against the camp before the evacuation was arranged.

The three-member Red Cross team, using a little blue car flying two big Red Cross flags, returned to the Christian front lines facing the camp just as Christian forces opened up on the camp with mortars, machine guns and small arms. The Christians accused Palestinian guerrillas inside the camp of taking advantage of the cease-fire to improve their positions by moving into strategic abandoned buildings at the edge of the camp.

The team, led by Swiss representative Jean Hoefliger, had called off the attempted mercy mission three times earlier this week because of heavy fighting. Christian militias have been attacking the camp for 33 days.

The camp is in east Beirut, which the Christian militias are trying to clear of Moslem fighters. The Christians broadened this effort today with an assault on the Moslem Nabaa slum quarter after a 48-hour mortar and artillery barrage.

"Savage fighting is raging," said a communique from the leftist Palestinian-

Lebanese Moslem command. "Our forces are repulsing one attack after another."

"The attack to purge Nabaa of Communists and Palestinian guerrillas is progressing satisfactorily," said the radio of the right-wing Phalange party, which has the largest militia fighting on the Christian side in the civil war.

Hospitals and security sources estimated that about 50 persons were killed in the attack. They said more than 50 others had been killed elsewhere in the last 24 hours.

Nabaa and the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp a mile to the north are the last Moslem pockets in east Beirut.

Tal Zaatar, which overlooks the highway to the 800-square-mile Christian enclave north of the city, has been neutralized by a Christian siege now going into its second month. Beirut resounded with the explosions of the bombardment of the shrinking Palestinian defenses of the camp today, but the defenders were still holding out.

Representatives of Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat were holding reconciliation talks in Damascus with Syrian officials. The Syrian government radio broke a two-day silence on the talks to report that Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam said they were "frank, fraternal and positive."

Citizens patrol radios to go into service

Members of the eight citizens patrols in Pettis County will be in direct communication with the sheriff's department effective tonight, according to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Approximately 400 volunteers are aiding Fairfax's department with nightly patrols in the eight areas in an effort to curb theft and vandalism in rural Pettis County.

The eight two-way radio units, which arrived this week, were purchased at a cost of about $800 to the county, Fairfax said, with the balance of the $3,300 cost paid through federal matching funds grants.

Demonstrations on using the radios were conducted by Fairfax July 16 for the various patrol unit leaders.

The radios are equipped with magnetic antennas and can be plugged into the cigarette lighters of the cars in which they are being used, Fairfax said. That way, whoever is on patrol one night can transfer the radio to the man patrolling in a certain area the next evening.

Delivery of the radios was delayed until this week, Fairfax said, due to the recent strike by United Parcel Service.

Forgery of check is charged; woman is arraigned here

Dianne Gail Clark, 18, 405 West Morgan, was arraigned before Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer Friday morning on felony charges of passing a forged check.

Arrested Thursday by Pettis County sheriff's officers, she is charged in connection with a May 5 incident in which she allegedly passed a forged check at Callies Furniture Co., 203 West Main.

The $245 check, drawn by the Missouri Division of Family Services on the Central Trust Bank, Jefferson City, allegedly contained a forged endorsement. The check was allegedly used to purchase two lamps and a wall clock from the furniture company.

Clark remains in the county jail in lieu of $2,500 bond, pending her preliminary hearing on Aug. 10.

Walking

we would be able to exist, or, rather, co-exist in a world that is truly ours, and not just the military's."

Other objectives of the walkers, as outlined in promotional literature they are dispensing to all interested persons this year, include:

—To raise the issue of disarmament through unilateral action as a first step toward pushing disarmament to the top of the public agenda;

—To encourage cooperation among people working for peace, social change, and sexual, racial and economic justice;

—To demonstrate how global and domestic and economic problems are interconnected with militarism and the causes of war, and how solutions to these problems must include dealing with war.

After arriving in town Friday, the group will hold a small-groups seminar at 7:30 p.m. at Sacred Heart cafeteria. This meeting, open to the public, "gives us what we seek most—the opportunity to meet with persons who are concerned as we are with the condition of the world or who want to learn more about it," MacLean said.

Many of the people they have met along their way to Washington "are really scared of it, all of the entire world military situation," he continued. "It seems to be an increasingly-common feeling among us all."

"Our walk will continue," he smiled as he left for Warrensburg to rejoin the marchers. "And our goals will continue beyond it. Conjuring up a utopia is usually a risky business, but we all believe strongly in our ideals."

★ Viking

The breakdown occurred after Viking's computer sent a series of commands to put the sampler arm through a test. As ordered, motors whirled and the arm ejected a cover that had protected the small shovel-like head during the flight from earth.

But after 13 of the 17 commands had been carried out, the arm, instead of swinging back to its resting position, stuck and refused to budge.

The arm extends from a gold-painted housing on the side of the lander. Attached to the battleship-gray lander, it looks something like a cannon on the deck of a warship.

Its job is to reach out and dig up a small amount of soil, then swing around and dump the dirt into three funnels. One funnel leads to the biological laboratory, the second to an instrument to test for organic compounds and the third to an inorganic analysis chamber.

Despite the potentially disastrous malfunction, the preprogrammed lander was to continue taking pictures of the rocky red terrain surrounding it, and monitoring the Martian weather.

The continuing trouble with the lander radio sender drastically slowed the return of data from Mars' surface. Among other things, it delayed the second Martian weather report.

Martin said that at the time of the sampler arm jam the temperature on the surface was about 9 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, which he doubted was cold enough to cause the problem.

But a Palestinian communique in Beirut said Syrian rockets pounded the Palestinian refugee camp of Nahr el Bared, on the outskirts of Tripoli, all night despite the meeting in Damascus. The communique said the bombardment was tantamount to a rejection of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's call Thursday for withdrawal of the 13,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon.

Kamal Jumblatt, the leader of Lebanon's leftist Moslems, announced that he is forming a government for the areas of the country controlled by his forces and their Palestinian allies.

Jumblatt, a Socialist who has eclipsed Premier Rashid Karami and other moderate Moslem leaders of the defunct Lebanese government, said Thursday the new "central political council" would be a counterpart to the provisional government set up in the Christian enclave north of Beirut by the leftists' foes in the 15-month-old civil war.

Meanwhile, the civil war continued, and the U. S. Embassy said it was still planning an evacuation convoy to Damascus when the fighting lets up. An American mechanic was checking out 15 old school buses parked near the embassy for use in the convoy. The embassy said 154 Americans and 281 other foreigners have signed up for the trip.

Rival says move may not mean more jobs

KANSAS CITY — Officials of the Rival Manufacturing Co. say the last of its manufacturing departments will be moved from Kansas City to Sedalia, probably before February.

Plant manager Lou White said about 80 diecasting employees would lose their jobs in the move. He said they may apply for work in Sedalia, but no provisions have been made for them to receive preferential treatment.

Vice president of manufacturing Bill Tweed said in Sedalia that most of the diecasting jobs would probably be absorbed by the current Sedalia staff.

"There will be no means automatically 80 jobs created in Sedalia," Tweed stated. "We are planning to phase in this particular operation over a period of months so that hopefully our current Sedalia work force (about 530 employees) will be able to assume the added work load."

Although acknowledging additional that additional employees may be hired later, Tweed emphasized no definite commitment in this area will be made.

He said the Kansas City diecasting machinery will likely be shipped to Sedalia, but that some new machinery might be purchased. The diecasting operation will be housed in the current Sedalia plant at 16th and Lamine, he said.

The diecasting machinery produces aluminum and zinc parts used in slicers, grinders and other products.

The company's headquarters and central warehouse would remain here and provide jobs for the 50 workers in shipping and receiving and 200 in the corporate offices.

Firm's permit to sell milk is suspended

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — In the first administrative enforcement of the state's Unfair Milk Sales Practices Act, Fairmont Foods Co. of Kansas City has had its license to sell milk in Missouri suspended for two weeks.

The order, issued by state Agriculture Director James Boillot on Thursday and made public today, says the dairy violated the 1959 law by discriminating in the price it charged for the same product in Kansas City and in Southwest Missouri and by failing to file with the state changes in the wholesale price of milk.

The penalty, which includes a 14-day suspension on the first charge and a concurrent four-day suspension on the second, is the first administrative penalty levied under the law.

Jerry Schultz, regional manager for the dairy, said in a telephone interview that the company is making no plans to curtail operations because of the suspension order and definitely will appeal.

"It was the opinion of our attorneys and everyone else that they had no justification for the hearings in the first place," Schultz said. "To our satisfaction and our attorneys' satisfaction there was no actual attempt to discriminate in price."

A formal statement from the dairy's corporate office in Nebraska is expected later, Schultz said, adding, "We haven't made any plans at this point in time except to appeal."

Boillot said today he expected his decision to be appealed to the circuit court.

Officials say one reason for the move is convenience. I.H. Miller, Rival president, said transportation costs and production delays can be eliminated by making the diecasting parts in Sedalia, rather than making them in Kansas City and shipping them to Sedalia, as is done now.

In addition, Miller says machinists in the Sedalia plant are paid less than those in the Kansas City plant. Rival is the manufacturer of Crock Pot slow cookers.

Ace pilot, a former Sedalian, is dead

MERIDIAN, Miss. — Al Key, 71, former flying ace who opened a flying school in Sedalia in the 1920s, died here July 17 of injuries he sustained in an automobile accident July 3.

Al Key and his brother, Fred, opened a flying school in Sedalia just weeks after each learned to fly. They later returned to their home here and opened a flying school. Their flying field became the city's airport and was named Key Field following their record flight.

The brothers set an endurance record after remaining aloft for 653 hours and 34 minutes. The flight ended shortly after 6 p.m. on July 1, 1936, and the record stood for several years.

Al Key served as mayor of Meridian from 1965 to 1973.

MoPac purchases new freight cars

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad announced today that it has purchased 700 new freight cars at a cost of more than $22 million.

The St. Louis-based rail carrier said the new cars include 500 covered hopper cars and 200 gondola cars, all of 100 ton capacity. The firm said it has also acquired 125 tri-level enclosed racks for movement of automobiles.

The railroad said the purchases are part of a new equipment program that calls for the addition of 1,425 new freight cars and 50 locomotives at a total cost of more than $63 million.

Ocean liner hit by fire

LONDON (AP) — A fire burned for 50 minutes early today in the engine room of the Queen Elizabeth 2, and the British liner interrupted her voyage to New York and turned back to Britain, the Cunard Line announced.

A Cunard spokesman said an engine room mechanic, K. P. Lyon, was burned, and one of the ships two main engines was damaged.

The Cunard flagship was carrying 1,200 passengers from Southampton and Cherbourg, France.

The QE2 was 80 miles west of the Scilly Isles, off the southwest tip of England, when the fire broke out at 5 a.m., the spokesman said. Most of the passengers were still asleep. The ship stopped while the engine room crew put out the blaze and examined the damaged engine, and the ship turned back on one engine, making six knots.

The spokesman said the 66,851-ton liner was expected to reach Southampton early Saturday afternoon.

Uncommitted delegates want advice

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's four uncommitted delegates to the Republican National Convention are seeking advice from their constituents on whether they should back President Ford or Ronald Reagan for the party's presidential nomination.

Despite a telephone call from the President and a meeting with the former California governor, four of Missouri's 49-member delegation to the national convention remain uncommitted. And three of them have turned to newspapers to solicit advice from their constituents.

While the uncommitteds are still wondering who to vote for, some confirmed delegates are receiving calls from those in opposing camps, hoping for a switch.

After the state GOP convention last month, Missouri's delegation was divided into 29 delegates for Reagan, 16 for Ford and four uncommitted.

Since then, those four from the 3rd Congressional District of south St. Louis city and county have been seeking and getting advice on whom they should support.

Marlene Zinzel had just had her hair set at a beauty shop Saturday when Ford called seeking her support.

But despite that conversation and an hour-long meeting with Reagan July 8 in Chicago, she's still uncommitted.

Mrs. Zinzel and another unpledged delegate, William Olenyik, placed an advertisement in a suburban newspaper Wednesday, asking readers whom they should support at the national convention which begins Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

By late Thursday, three responses had been received, Olenyik said, all of them for Reagan.

"They were answering on the basis of his (Reagan's) pro-life stand and his position on amnesty," Olenyik said.

Both said the final results of the poll would be a factor in their decision between the two presidential nomination contenders.

Fred Whaley, another uncommitted, has been conducting a poll through a newspaper ad for the past two weeks.

"It's surprising how close it is," Whaley said of the 200 responses he's received so far. He said at first Reagan appeared to have the edge but that the two candidates are "very close" up to this point. Whaley declined to provide exact figures.

Dead man is found in trunk of automobile

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The trunk of a parked car on Kansas City's north side was pried open Thursday by police who found the body of a 61-year-old man inside, shot twice in the head.

The victim, identified as David Bonadonna, described by his family as a real estate investor, had been dead only a few hours, police said.

Blood dripping from the car trunk attracted the attention of a nearby apartment resident who summoned police to near Ninth and Wabash, where the car had been left in a parking lot.

Officers said Bonadonna's pants pockets were pulled inside out, indicating he may have owed money to his slayers. The murder weapon was not found, police said.

The body was identified by a son, Anthony Bonadonna. Police said they found no identification or wallet on the body. The car was registered in the name of Bonadonna's wife, and they contacted her.

Royal treatment waiting?

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — If any Marianas Mallards or two kinds of pearly mussels are found in Kansas, they "will be accorded every courtesy appropriate to the circumstance," Gov. Robert F. Bennett has assured a federal official.

Bennett wrote Lynn A. Greenwalt, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, D. C., after receiving two letters with enclosures, from Greenwalt.

"As near as I can tell, after reading some 82 pages of your work effort the only plant listed for Kansas is Mead's Milkweed," The governor wrote tongue in cheek.

"In Kansas, we'll do the best we possibly can to discourage the commercial collection and interstate sale of this 'toxa.' This may come as a substantial blow the economic growth of our state but a blow which we'll make every effort to survive."

Bennett said Iowa has declared the Sunflower, the Kansas state flower, to be a noxious weed.

"As you consider protection for the Bitter Weed in Texas, Barbara's Buttons in Alabama and Georgia, and the Goldenrod in Kentucky, Georgia and North Carolina, it might not be inappropriate for you to give consideration to the unfortunate and now dangerous plight of the Sunflower in Iowa."

"A fearless flexing of the federal muscle in this regard would clearly rival if not completely surpass your eternal concern for Mead's Milkweed, the Mindoro Zone-Tailed Pigeon, the Orange-footed Templeback and the Fat Pocketbook Pearly Mussel, a challenge worthy of any enterprising federal bureaucrat."

"You have asked that I furnish you with the name and address of the person, office or agency within my state currently responsible for endangered plant matters and with whom you should correspond. In Kansas, historically and traditionally, the protection of plant life has appropriately been vested in the Kansas farmer, who but for federal intervention and control has done a pretty good job of protecting and preserving the environment, but with your federal rules and regulations he too is becoming endangered and threatened and may find his name on your list in the years to come.

"Under the circumstances, if you must correspond on matters of such moment, please feel free to continue to correspond with this office."

In postscript, Bennett added: "Since you apparently are committed to the dispensation of valuable information to the general public, perhaps you would be kind enough to share with me the total federal cost for this program, both direct and indirect."

Extortion confirmed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A demand for $200,000 from the Worlds of Fun amusement park by extortionists who planted an unarmed bomb device on the premises as a threat was confirmed Thursday by the FBI.

Bill Williams, FBI special agent, disclosed that two notes were left Tuesday at the north side Kansas City park, one containing a key to a storage locker containing the explosive device, and another in the locker with the bomb.

Williams declined to specify what threats were made in the second note. He said only that the extortionists "meant business and would follow through if their demands were not met."

He said a telephone call to Worlds of Fun security personnel, telling them where to find the typewritten notes, has been the only contact between park officials and the extortionists.

Police said Thursday they believe the extortion attempt was thrown off by discovery Tuesday night of a third note tacked to a tree in midtown Gillham Park.

That note, found by a park ranger, gave instructions to drop a sack of money in a trash can near a picnic table in the city park.

Williams said a possible connection between notes left at Worlds of Fun and the note discovered in Gillham Park would be clarified by laboratory analysis.

"The notes were grammatically well prepared and well composed," he said. "The notes at Worlds of Fun were directed to park officials there by name. I'm not an expert on explosives, but I would describe the device as being very sophisticated, based on the configuration and wiring. The individual who made it knew what he was doing."

Williams said the FBI was comparing the attempt with others like it across the country for similarities.

Lower prices, controls are threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — A buildup in U.S. wheat reserves because of this year's near-record harvest will threaten producers with tumbling prices and future government controls if they fail to show more self-restraint when they plant the 1977 crop, says the National Association of Wheat Growers.

Total production of all kinds of wheat this year is estimated at 2.4 billion bushels, second only to the 1975 harvest of more than 2.1 billion, according to the Agriculture Department.

Added to what was leftover from previous crops, that means there will be far more wheat than experts say will be used domestically and exported in the 1976-77 season which began June 1.

By next June 1, when another harvest will be ready, the wheat leftover is expected to total about 922 million bushels, the most since 985 million were in the U.S. stockpile on the same date in 1972 just before a string of record export years developed.

The reserve or carryover this June 1 was 665 million bushels, up from 430 million June 1, 1975, and 339 million on June 1, 1974. Thus, the wheat stockpile is rapidly rebuilding to the levels which alarmed growers just a few years ago.

Since the big export market developed in 1972, government acreage curbs were relaxed and then abandoned as farmers were encouraged to produce as much grain as they could. The open-end acreage program will remain in effect for the 1977 wheat crop, which will begin early this fall with the planting of winter wheat.

The National Association of Wheat Growers is telling its members they "must take the increased carryover projection into consideration when planning fall seedings" of winter wheat.

"Producers who like today's 'freedoms' in agriculture must be aware that these freedoms also carry the responsibility of individual decision-making," the association said in its current newsletter. "A succession of two-billion-bushel crops and ever-increasing carryovers are a grave threat to this freedom."

One of the reasons for a prospective large buildup in wheat stockpiles a year from now is "at this season's exports to decline somewhat, from nearly 1.2 billion bushels in 1975-76 to around 1.05 billion. Domestic use, tentatively projected at about 785 million bushels, will be about the same as last year."

But the overriding factor simply is larger production, the two huge back-to-back wheat harvests which have ballooned supplies sharply from the low levels of several years ago.

The USDA's Outlook and Situation Board said this week that the farm price of 1976-crop wheat "may average somewhat below" last season's average of $3.52 a bushel as a result of the huge supply. But officials hedged, saying that the general grain situation in the United States and overseas will bear heavily on what happens.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The current slump in beef cattle prices is the deepest since last winter when choice steers on the Omaha, Neb., market averaged $32-$35 per 100 pounds.

A report Thursday by the Agriculture Department showed that last week, for example, the average Omaha steer price was $37.25 per hundredweight. In April, after prices had recovered from an earlier decline, they were around $44 per hundredweight.

Just a year ago, after slipping from a 1975 peak of about $55, Omaha cattle prices were still averaging nearly $52 per hundredweight, about $14 more than producers have been getting lately.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn sales to Western Europe have increased sharply in recent weeks as a result of drought-shortened grain harvest there, says the Agriculture Department.

By July 11, the department said Thursday in a weekly export report, corn sales this season to European Common Market countries totalled 10.2 million metric tons, a gain of 497,000 tons in one week. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The report said "corn commitments have now jumped 1.6 million tons in the last four weeks. This reflects the deterioration in crop prospects and available feed supplies due to drought conditions" in Europe.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell said Thursday in a speech at Lafayette, Ind., that corn shipments to Western Europe are expected to increase further in the season ahead which begins Oct. 1 with this fall's harvest.

In all, Bell said, corn exports to western Europe in 1976-77 are expected to total 18 million to 19 million tons, an increase of two million to three million from this season.

Difficulties with the National Anthem

By TOM TIEDE
NEA News Analyst

NEW YORK — Once again the Democratic Convention delegates have survived a participatory rendition of the National Anthem. As Peter Duchin's orchestra provided the music, the delegates passed treacherously but safely through the words. Chords popped out of necks, faces colored — yet according to attending physicians there were no fatalities and only a suspected coronary threat.

Fortunately, just the first stanza was required. There are four verses to the Star Spangled Banner, and the hazards after the first are truly awesome. Just reading the morass is painful:

Oh! Thus be it ever when freemen shall stand

Between their loved home and the war's desolation,

Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land

Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause is just, And this be our motto, "In God is our trust."

And the Star Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

I'm serious. That's verse four. Two and three are best not resurrected. Once a group of Nebraska school children are said to have sung the whole thing, and the dogs in Omaha howled for a week. People who witnessed that phenomenon said the dogs sounded better. One mother commented that whoever wrote the score must have thought fugue was something that went on between the Hatfields and McCoys.

Ah, the Star Spangled Banner. Oh! Say can you sing it? Most people cannot. Robert Goulet once forgot the words at the ringside of a heavyweight boxing championship. Metropolitan Opera basso George London has said the difficulties of the tune "awe me." A minor league baseball executive used to tell his singers to move around the park while singing the anthem, "to present a moving target."

Francis Scott Key, of course, is partly to blame for the matter. A Baltimore attorney, he was on a British warship arranging for the release of a captured friend when Fort McHenry was attacked (in 1814). For the most part, the attack was a minor incident in a minor war, but Key recorded it as an epic poem. Historians believe he fudged a bit; for instance he could not see the flag still waving, because it was wet with rain and because he was too far out in the Patapsco River. Nonetheless, his description caught the fancy of a nation that needed it.

However, it did not become the national anthem until 117 years later, when the nation needed it even more. In 1931, as Depression gripped the people, and as government searched for anything to lift the spirits, a Maryland congressman guided a bill through Congress to make Key's poem the national tune. An old English drinking song of no particular merit was selected as the music, and President Herbert Hoover asked all Americans to sing it as they stood in the soup lines.

Early on, the only criticism of the song came from musicians who claimed it straightened out their tubas. More recently, however, it has suffered vicious attacks from people with hernias. And too, there are complaints that the words are inappropriately combative. In verse three, for example, Key wrote about the blood of the British which had washed out their "polluted footsteps." The gripe is you can't sing that on a full stomach without an air bag.

While accurate, the complaints of the anthem's chauvinism are not convincing. National anthems are traditionally hard-nosed. The second verse of England's God Save the Queen exhorts God to scatter the nation's enemies, confuse their politics and "frustrate their knavish tricks." And even mild-mannered Denmark has an anthem which glories in swords that pass through Gothic brains.

As for the complaint that it is unsingable, even unsayable, a spokesman at the modern-day Fort McHenry says: "Hell, it wasn't written for convenience." Indeed, Key did not compose with the weak-lunged in mind, or the Democratic convention for that matter. He wrote it in praise of an idea, a philosophy, a people if you will who need not hit all its notes to be stirred by its notions.

Hence, to criticize its meter may be unfair, and to suggest its change is futile. Except. Except now that Jimmy Carter is among us, there is hope.

Dixie?

Carl Rowan No change expected in reforms

WASHINGTON — Congress is getting down to the nitty-gritty where so-called tax reform is concerned, and one thing seems perfectly clear:

when all the votes are in, the super-rich, the specially privileged, the loophole hustlers will still have a license to steal.

Doesn't it puzzle you as to how this can be so?

Jimmy Carter sent those Democratic convention delegates into a frenzy when he said: "It is time for a complete overhaul of our tax system. It is a disgrace to the human race. All my life I have heard promises of tax reform, but it never quite happens. With your help, we are finally going to make it happen! You can depend on that!"

Well, Mr. Carter, it isn't going to happen in this Congress, and it isn't those hard-hearted old Republicans who are solely to blame. Some of your cheering Democrats rushed from Madison Square Garden right back to Capitol Hill to make sure no one had disturbed the blanket of protection they had draped over certain legal rip-offs.

Candidate Carter's ringing rhetoric about tax reform will become believable and his whole campaign will take on lustrous credibility when he tells us how he proposes to rein in Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), the Finance Committee chairman who unashamedly has shielded the oil interests (which are plentiful in his state and his own family) and assorted other moneyed interests. (With worse records than Long's are Finance Committee members Herman Talmadge, Georgia, Mike Gravel, Alaska, Lloyd Bentsen, Texas and Harry Byrd, Virginia, all Democrats; and Carl Curtis, Nebraska, Paul Fannin, Arizona, Clifford Hansen, Wyoming, and Bob Packwood, Oregon, all Republicans.)

A substantial number of lawmakers are sufficiently wealthy that they personally need tax shelters, or they hold substantial interests in housing, oil, banking and other interests whose profit margins depend heavily on favorable tax laws.

Even liberal, relatively poor Congressmen accept the idea of "tax expenditures" — that is, it is in the national interest to reduce the taxes of people and corporations if they do certain socially desirable things, or if they invest their money in certain ways.

Let's look only at the "tax expenditure" concept. The Congress sees unemployed people rioting in the streets and decides that public tranquility requires that industry give a break to the "hard-core unemployed." Industry isn't enlightened enough to help these people on its own, but it will respond if government allows special tax breaks to firms that help the chronic jobless.

Government notes that private builders aren't much interested in building houses and apartments for low and low-middle-income families. So it enacts laws giving huge tax deductions to people who risk their money to build houses for people who are risks in terms of paying rent or taking care of the property.

Sometimes it isn't the public need for housing that provokes Congress to lay on massive tax breaks. During the recession from which we seem to be emerging the housing industry became a sort of disaster area, with many builders going bankrupt, wiping out or endangering some of the banks that had granted loans. Congress decided it was in the national interest to grant up to $2,000 in tax credits to people buying new homes in certain periods.

Some people will say that these "tax expenditures" in the housing industry, otherwise known as "loopholes," are responsible for the fact that some 3 million of our 56 million American families now own their homes.

The trouble is that every tax deduction allowed for supposedly good social reasons is wrapped up in legal complications. Lawyer members of Congress are lawyer members of their staffs have field day dreaming up "whereases" and "howevers." But on the outside there are smarter who exploit the complications which is why Detroit, St. Louis and other cities now have vast neighborhoods which are symbols of grass ripoffs well-meant housing programs.

Should we stop giving private individuals and firms tax breaks for doing socially desirable things? That would mean government would have to do it directly. Is there any way on earth to have "tax expenditures" without inviting armies of cheaters?

I wonder if Jimmy Carter really thinks he knows a way to end this disgrace.

Bureaucratic folly still in abundance

That ruling by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), which would have banned father-son and mother-daughter events in public schools as violations of sex discrimination laws had it not been squelched by President Ford, is not the only — or worst — example of bureaucratic silliness emanating from this particular bureau. At least two others have come to our attention lately.

In the Perry school system near Massillon, Ohio, girls who grow moustaches or beards are henceforth barred from classrooms. The school board took this drastic action in an attempt to bring its dress code into compliance with an HEW directive. The department had said that the code discriminated against boys by limiting the length of hair and prohibiting moustaches or beards without applying similar restrictions to girls.

Meanwhile, down in Shreveport, La., the Caddo Parish school system has been threatened by HEW with a cut-off of almost $700,000 in federal aid because there are more black children than white children in special education classes. The fact that there are 1,300 black children and only 900 white children enrolled in the parish's programs for the mentally retarded amounts to racial discrimination, the department alleges.

"That's the most preposterous thing I've ever heard of," says school board president Joe Garner. "What are we supposed to do, recruit? What will the federal government think of next?"

That's a question whose answer we tremble to speculate upon.

'Watch' our comeback.

Striking proof (no pun intended) that the United States still sets the pace in advanced product technology is found in the phenomenal growth of the digital watch industry.

Digital watches are those little electronic jobs using light-emitting diodes (LEDs), which at the touch of a button show the time in hours and minutes and in some cases seconds, as well as the month and day.

"We sold over 300,000 digital watches last year and we expect to do even better this year," says Eugene Gluck, president of E. Gluck Corp., the nation's No. 3 watch company in terms of unit sales.

As additional proof of the continuing vitality of the American free enterprise system, it is interesting to note that Gluck came to the United States in the 1940s as a wartime refugee from Europe and started his company from scratch. It now sells nearly three million watches of all types a year. (NEA)

By JACK ANDERSON with
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Republican peacemakers, operating behind the scenes, are trying to bring Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan together. The objective is to unite the GOP behind a Ford-Reagan ticket at the Kansas City convention next month.

In the Ford camp, top campaign aides have quietly added Reagan's name to their priority list of vice presidential prospects. Sources familiar with the list say it contains three other names — Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally and Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson.

The same aides have also drawn up a secondary list of possibilities whom President Ford would consider as his running mate. This lesser list includes Ambassador to Britain Ann Armstrong, Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, Gov. Dan Evans of Washington, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois and Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa.

In the Reagan camp, some aides have indicated privately that, as a fallback position, they would consider a Ford-Reagan ticket. They have warned that they may not support the ticket if Reagan isn't on it. For the record, meanwhile, Reagan spokesmen still insist their man will win the presidential nomination and won't accept anything less.

Those who are seeking to reconcile Ford and Reagan contend that it will take a unified ticket to win in November. They point out that Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale have jumped off to an alarming early lead.

The President's men also recognize, as one of them put it, that Reagan has "a strong appeal with conservatives," would strengthen the ticket in the West and South and is "best known" of the vice presidential possibilities.

Merry-go-round

Peace between Ford, Reagan is top goal

But there is also resistance in the Ford camp to an alliance of the two rivals. Raising the "credibility problem," some aides ask whether the voters would believe Ford and Reagan could work together after their bitter attacks upon one another. Some Ford advisers think Reagan might hurt the ticket more than he would help it, "we were told."

They doubt, for example, that Reagan could help Ford win the South against Jimmy Carter. The Ford people also question whether Reagan would accept second place on the ticket.

The Ford strategists are high on Sen. Baker who, as a Watergate hero, could help negate whatever Nixon taint remains on Ford. Coming from Tennessee, Baker would give the ticket geographical balance.

Ford aides also count as a plus the fact that Baker is the son-in-law of the late Senate windbag, Everett Dirksen, a World War I balloonist who rose to greater heights in politics on hot air than he ever attained over the battlefields of France.

Like the late Senate spieler, whose oratorical excesses are remembered with affection on Capitol Hill, Baker is an excellent speaker. Yet Ford insiders wonder if he would be a forceful campaigner or, for that matter, could even win his own state of Tennessee against Carter.

The most effective campaigner, Ford aides agree, would be John Connally. By their analysis, he is "unquestionably" qualified to be President. They think he could also take Texas away from Carter.

But they are worried that Connally would be haunted by the milk scandal. Although he was acquitted of bribery charges, the word leaked out that the jury merely gave him the benefit of doubts that might still be raised in a campaign. Some Ford aides also fear the dynamic Connally would "overpower" Ford.

As for Richardson, his positive Watergate image and reputation for integrity would be a great asset. He is also regarded by the Ford people as a proven administrator who would be well qualified for the presidency. He is popular in the Northeast, too, where Ford must pick up support to defeat Carter.

But on the negative side, Ford insiders describe Richardson as a "pedantic" speaker whom, they fear, would be a "lackluster campaigner." He is weak, too, in the South.

A careful screening of the vice presidential possibilities will continue, meanwhile, until convention time.

Mt. Vesuvius, dominating Italy's Bay of Naples, is the world's most famous volcano. Its most famous eruption was in 79 A.D., when the Roman cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae were buried. Other major eruptions were in 1139 and 1631, the latter destroying five towns and taking 4,000 lives. Minor eruptions occurred in 1779, 1793, 1872, 1906 and 1944.

The Professor went right up with dummy's ace of diamonds and proceeded to run off all of his seven spades.

West signalled strongly in clubs so East chucked all his clubs in order to hold on to four hearts and the king of diamonds.

The Professor who liked to have fun with the student who had put him in the slam remarked, "You wouldn't have bid all you did without the eight of hearts would you?"

Then the Professor showed East his hand, led the nine of hearts to dummy's ace and the deuce of hearts back toward his own hand. East had no defense. If he played low the Professor would win with his seven, cash the king, throw East in with the king of diamonds and make him give dummy the last trick with the queen of hearts. If East split his honors, South would take his king, throw East in with a diamond and make him give dummy the last two tricks with the queen-eight of hearts. West blamed East for the double and said that he would have led a club and beaten the contract if East hadn't doubled, but West was wrong. We will leave you readers to figure out how the hand makes with a club lead.

Ask the Jacobys

The bidding proceeds three clubs-pass-pass-pass-double. A Missouri reader wants to know if the double is for penalty or for takeout.

The answer is that in all standard systems it is for takeout. Of course, partner can and should pass if he has club tricks.

PRISCILLA'S POP

Ann Landers

Subject needs enlightenment

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Frightened and Alone," the 40-year-old homosexual who was threatened with blackmail. I really do sympathize with him. I also realize how important it is for him to remain "in the closet." Although people are becoming a great deal more enlightened on the subject, it's still not safe to "announce."

I did, however, resent it very much when your correspondent referred to his homosexuality as a "severe personality disorder." He did all of us (yes, I am One) a grave disservice.

Did you not read that the American Psychiatric Association removed homosexuality from its list of mental disorders? They substituted a category called "sexual orientation disturbances" which includes those who are bothered by or wish to change their sexual orientation. I believe the man who wrote to you belongs in the latter category.

I would appreciate it, Ann if you would set the record straight. Thank you. — Another Lifestyle

Dear Another: The record will never be set straight until the story is told about the behind-the-scenes battling that went on when the American Psychiatric Association ran into that buzz saw.

Many psychiatrists refused to accept the decision. They made it abundantly clear that the American Psychiatric Association does not speak for all its members. My principal consultants disagreed with the decision. And that's where I stand.

I fought for the civil rights of homosexuals 20 years ago and argued that they should be regarded as full and equal citizens. However, I do NOT believe homosexuality is "just another lifestyle." I believe these people suffer from a severe personality disorder. Granted, some are sicker than others, but sick they are, and all the fancy rhetoric by the American Psychiatric Association will not change it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was not happy to see in your column AGAIN a reminder that all widows, as well as married women, should be addressed as Mrs. John Doe.

Maybe I am having an identity crisis, but I prefer to be addressed as Mrs. Jane Doe. My husband is alive and well and we get along fine, but I don't feel that I need his first name as well as his last to identify myself. I was born Jane. I went through school as Jane. I am employed as Jane. When I receive mail, I want it addressed to Jane because — that's ME. Print this please. — JANE DOE

Dear Jane: If you prefer Jane to Mrs. John, request that your mail be addressed to you in that manner. I received a surprising number of letters from widows who informed me most emphatically that they, too, would prefer to be addressed by their own first names. In fact, one widow wrote, "My husband's death was a blessed release from slavery. He was a cruel and miserly master. I'd just as soon not hear his name again — much less be called by it." We live and learn.

Poquette helps Royals end skid

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hard-playing Tom Poquette used to believe this was the age of the anti-hero.

"Now I know better," he said Thursday night after singling and tripling and batting in a run to help the Kansas City Royals ease past Milwaukee, 3-1.

The sensational rookie outfielder is also regaining the batting tempo that had people booming him for rookie-of-the-year honors before a collision with the leftfield wall June 22 fractured a bone in his face.

The 24-year-old Wisconsin native, temporarily waylaid previously by two knee operations, was blistering the ball at a .347 pace, third best in the American League, when the injury struck.

Before he was released from the hospital more than 400 letters from Royals fans had poured in. And, to his surprise, most of them complimented his hustling, aggressive style.

"I didn't think anyone really appreciated that sort of thing anymore," he says now. "It was my natural way of doing things. I'd been playing like that all my life. I didn't know any other way to play."

"But I sort of figured that most of the people in the stands were scoffing at me. I'd heard that Pete Rose gets booed a lot wherever he goes, and I just figured most people just thought you were hot-dogging it when you hustled on every play."

"The best part of the whole thing was learning how much people appreciate it when I hustle."

Royals Manager Whitey Herzog is worried that Poquette may be playing too much too soon. The left side of his face is still faintly discolored and tender where the surgeon's knife made its incision.

"With the injuries to some other players I've had to use him more than I wanted to," Herzog said. "For three weeks he couldn't even run."

Poquette's average has now settled at .325 and Herzog, who admits he was at first surprised by the rookie's batting abilities, is surprised no more.

"I expect good things from him. He's a great kid."

Yank discus thrower: U.S. blowing potential

MONTREAL (AP) — Mac Wilkins is a towering, bearded discus thrower in pursuit of an Olympic gold medal and he is the angriest Yank in the Olympic Village.

"I would like to see East Germany win all the medals — maybe that would shake up our people a bit," he said. "I hate dalliance and inefficiency. It irks me to see potential wasted."

The 6-foot-4 University of Oregon graduate, who has a toss of 232 feet, 6 inches pending for a world record, checked into the U.S. headquarters Thursday after six days of private training with teammate Al Feuerbach in Three Rivers, Quebec.

He immediately started dropping bombshells.

The U.S. Olympic Committee is a "joke," he said, "laughed at by the IOC and other countries, and should be replaced by a whole new set of people with new concepts and fresh ideas."

The entire American sports system is archaic and too attuned to professional spectator sports, he added. "I outgrew the system in high school — I knew more than my coaches."

He also said:

"Television in the Olympics is superficial and ignorant. All they are interested in is catching Olga Korbut in a pratfall or doing other things just to make money. They are not interested in educating the audience."

"All the sports federations are reactionary. They're only concerned about maintaining their position of control."

Blue Moon wins as Sox take two

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The last time Blue Moon Odom started an American League game he fired a two-hit shutout for the Cleveland Indians against the Kansas City Royals and three days later he was traded to the National League.

This time he hopes to stick around a little longer.

The one-time Oakland A's star, dropped by the Atlanta Braves just before the start of the season, is back in the majors with the Chicago White Sox. Thursday night he made his first AL start since June 4, 1975.

He threw six shutout innings before tiring in the seventh but was credited with the triumph as the White Sox trounced the Detroit Tigers 9-3 in the first half of a doubleheader. Detroit bounced back to take the nightcap 5-1 with rookie Jason Thompson socking his 13th homer.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Oakland A's nipped the New York Yankees 6-5, the Kansas City Royals shaded the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Texas Rangers 4-3, the Cleveland Indians downed the California Angels 7-5 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

"It's like starting all over for me," said the 31-year-old Odom, who debuted in the big leagues in 1964 and did some of his best pitching in six World Series appearances and four playoff games.

Resurrected from the minors a couple of weeks ago, Odom lasted 62-3 innings, yielding eight hits and three runs while walking one and striking out three.

A's 6, Yankees 5

Shortstop Bert Campaneris, who helped the Yankees tie the score in the seventh inning when he forgot the number of outs and neglected to complete an easy double play, drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

The Yankees got two solo home runs from Oscar Gamble and one from Graig Nettles while Joe Rudi slammed a two-run shot for Oakland.

Indians 7, Angels 5

Charlie Spikes keyed a five-run first inning with a grand slam homer off Frank Tanana and Boog Powell hit a solo blast to pace the Indians over the Angels.

Tourney canceled

CALGARY (AP) — The world championship women's softball tournament, which was to have been held here in 1978, has been canceled because the federal government threatened to withhold funds for the event if Taiwan and South Africa were invited.

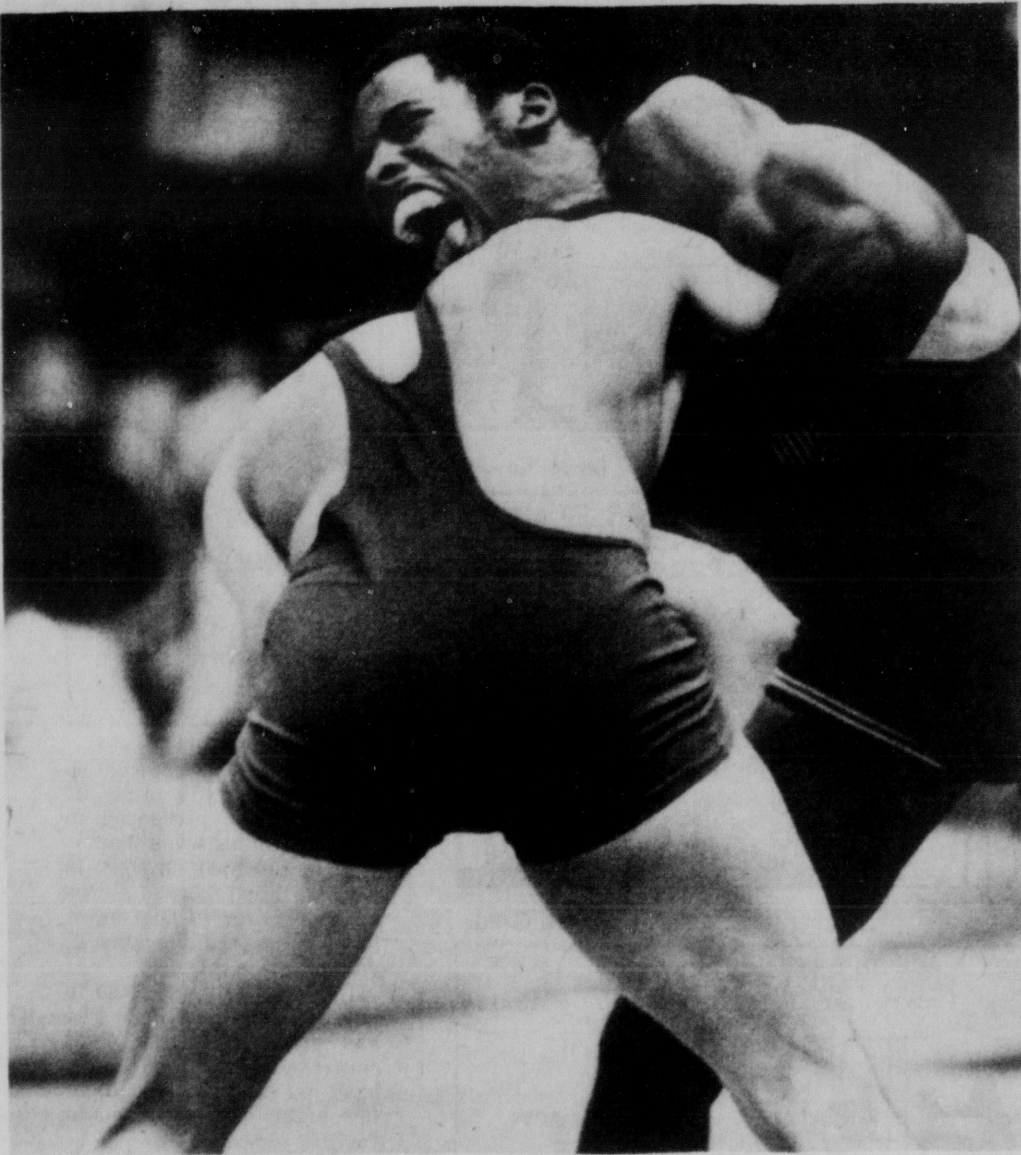

Roberta Schweitzer, general chairman of the World Softball Championship Society, said Thursday half the funding for the tourney was to have come from the federal government through Sport Canada.

It is expected the tournament will be awarded to Australia.

Midfielder sold

The Whitecaps acquired Suhholz from the Boston Minutemen in a straight cash transaction July 6.

Face Steelers

All-Star squad two TD underdog

CHICAGO (AP) — Terry Bradshaw and the two-time Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers are 15-point favorites tonight when they tangle with a strong-running, strong-defensive College All-Star squad.

The midsummer football classic in Soldier Field will be televised nationally by ABC, 9:30 p.m., EDT, but will be blacked out locally because it is not a sellout.

All-Star mentor Ara Parseghian says that if "we can play an error-free game, the fans are in for a surprise ... Pittsburgh, a very sound football team, is going to have its hands full."

"We have to get off to a good start," said Parseghian, who resigned at Notre Dame a year ago because of health reasons. "We've been close the last two years and there's not that large a separation between us and the Steelers. I like that underdog role and I think the All-Star squad does, too."

The last time the All-Stars upset the National Football League champions was in 1963 when Coach Otto Graham's youngsters stunned the late Vince Lombardi and his Green Bay Packers 20-17. The pros have won the game 30 times, the collegians nine, with two ties.

Missing will be quarterback Richard Todd of Alabama, No. 1 choice of the New York Jets and the first signal caller to go in the pro draft. Todd did not report to All-Star camp.

Parseghian does have three other quarterbacks, each with a special type of skill but each admittedly having minor shortcomings.

The All-Stars coach has not announced his starter from among Mike Kruczek, who set an all-time pass completion percentage record of .673 in three years at Boston College; Craig Penrose of San Diego State, who led the nation in passing last season with 15 touchdowns and 2,660 yards, and Jeb Blount of Tulsa, who hit for 13 TDs in 1975.

In the offensive backfield, All-Americans Archie Griffin of Ohio State, the two-time Heisman Trophy winner, and Chuck Muncie of California power a corps of runners that also includes Tony Galbreath of Missouri, Joe Washington of Oklahoma and Mike Pruitt of Purdue.

With Joe Greene and the Steelers' front four doing the rushing, whoever quarterbacks the All-Stars must get rid of the ball fast. Receivers include Brian Bashnagel of Ohio State, Duriel Harris of New Mexico State, Sam White of Grambling, Larry Dorsey of Tennessee State and Dave Logan of Colorado.

A pair of well-known football brothers, LeRoy and Dewey Selmon of Oklahoma, anchor the defense, which also includes Steve Niehaus of Notre Dame, Jim Hunter of Grambling and Ed Simonini of Texas A&M.

Simmons at third in Cardinals loss

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Catcher Ted Simmons is going back behind the plate for the St. Louis Cardinals — and not a moment too soon.

Simmons, the National League club's top RBI man, tried out at third base a second straight game Thursday night and afterward quickly decided he'd rather play elsewhere.

"They were worried about whether I could field the ball, not whether I could throw," said Simmons after committing two of five Cards errors helping the Chicago Cubs to an 8-4 triumph.

"It's just an adjustment to make with the throwing, but that's the last thing I was worried about," he added. "As it turned out I fielded the ball all right, but my throws were terrible."

Simmons' miscues, one while throwing and one while fielding, occurred during the late innings of a St. Louis defensive collapse awarding the Cubs five unearned runs.

And in the aftermath of the defeat, the club's fourth in a row, Cards Manager Red Schoendienst promised he'll return Simmons to catching duties tonight.

"It was bad, I'll say that," remarked Schoendienst reflecting on St. Louis' fifth loss to Chicago in seven games. "We always play back against them," he added. "I can't understand it."

More decipherable than the mystery in Schoendienst's mind was the process by which the Cubs scored their runs beginning in legitimate fashion via Manny Trillo's first-inning single.

Winning pitcher Steve Stone, 2-2, scored an inning later following Vic Harris' first of two errors at second base, then Chicago erupted for three more and a 5-1 lead with the aid of two miscues in the sixth.

A base on balls and Simmons' two-out error hiked the advantage to 6-1 in the seventh and the Cubs added two more, one on Simmons' errant throw, in the eighth.

Finally, trailing 8-1, the Cards arose for three runs in the bottom of the eighth only to run into Joe Coleman's three-strikeout relief after threatening again in the ninth.

Schoendienst provided a lineup for the second of a four-game Cubs-Cards series tonight which includes Simmons behind the plate, rookie Hector Cruz at third base and Bee Bee Richard in place of Harris at second.

Goodell, Boggs win for U.S.

Nadia bows out with two more golds

MONTREAL (AP) — Officials kept a wary watch on the Russians. The queen watched the princess. And most of the rest of the world watched Nadia.

It was the farewell performance in the XXI Olympic Games by the little girl who has won the hearts of the world, and 14-year-old Nadia Comaneci made it a beauty, so outstanding it even overshadowed a couple of major rows centering around the troubled Russians.

With perhaps one billion people watching on television, the little 88-pounder, ponytail in place, racked up her sixth and seventh perfect scores — the perfect 10 that, before these Games, never had been awarded — and collected two more gold medals.

Out of the gymnasium, she remained as stoic as ever.

"I am not surprised. I knew if I persevered I would do well," the Romanian schoolgirl said before leaving for a Black Sea vacation with a haul of three gold medals — women's all-around, balance beam, uneven parallel bars — a silver for the team and a bronze in the floor exercise.

Nelli Kim of Russia, who collected golds in the floor exercise and vault, along with her second perfect score of the Games, was a little more outgoing and giggly.

"I haven't quite realized it yet," she said. "Maybe tomorrow or the next day it will come to me. I'm slow about these things sometimes."

They evenly divided the golds in last night's final events in women's gymnastics, but Kornelia Ender of East Germany and the American men swimmers continued to grab them all.

Miss Ender won the women's 100 meter butterfly in world record time of 1:00.13 then headed for the dressing room.

"I changed my suit and there I was," she said. She was back on the starting block again. And again she won in world record time, 1:59.26 in the 200 meter freestyle. The triumphs came only 25 minutes apart and gave her four golds and the amazing East Germans' victories in all but one of the women's swimming events held.

Brian Goodell, a 17-year-old from Mission Viejo, Calif., and an American relay team also set world records in winning in the 400 meter freestyle and the 400 meter medley relay, remaining unbeaten in these Games. The American men now have won all nine swimming events competed, set world records in eight of them, collected six more silver medals and three bronze.

Overall, the United States now has a leading collection of 13 gold, 10 silver and five bronze. Russia is next with 9-12-7, East Germany has 9-7-6 and Romania, primarily on the verge and fire and grace of Nadia, has 3-2-2.

The Russians, who already have had a modern pentathlon competitor kicked out of the Games for cheating, swept the medals in individual saber but continue to be embroiled in controversy.

Tom Gompf, manager of the American diving team, told The Associated Press he had been approached by Russians earlier this year who proposed a deal to him through which the Soviets would have received judges' voting support for their female springboard diver, Irina Kalinina, in exchange for a promise to have Russian judges back Phil Boggs of the United States in the men's event.

Gompf said the Russians came to him because he had been a judge in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich. He said he made it clear the deal was not accepted.

Gompf later said he was misquoted, but The Associated Press stuck by its report and said it refrained, at Gompf's request, from naming the Russians involved.

The international swimming federation, governing body for Olympic aquatic events, said its members feel "further explanations must be made by the individual who made the statement because the information is insufficient at this time."

And it added:

"The bureau has set up checks on their judges to guard against prejudicial judging."

The swimming federation, through its president, Dr. Harold Henning, earlier in the day had threatened disciplinary action against the Russians, who wanted to pull out their water polo team because it had no chance to win the gold medal. Dr. Henning called it "poor sportsmanship."

The Russians later changed their minds and decided the water polo team will continue to compete.

In the men's diving, Capt. Boggs, the favorite from the Air Force Academy, survived some gamesmanship being played by the American and Russian judges and won the men's three meter springboard diving with 619.0 points, followed by Franco Kagnoto of Italy and Aleksandr Kosenkov of Russia.

Through many of the dives, the Russian consistently scored Boggs lower than the American judge and the American judge scored Kosenkov lower than the Russian judge.

In some other major activity, Princess Anne of Great Britain made her Olympic debut as a member of the equestrian team, another American boxer advanced over a Russian opponent and the American women's basketball team kept their medal hopes alive with an 89-75 victory over Canada.

Princess Anne, with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip looking on, had a spotty ride on a fiery, hard-to-handle horse in the first day of the dressage competition, which is based on harmony between horse and rider. She was judged seventh in a field of 24.

Sugar Ray Leonard, a 140-pound boxer from Palmer Park, Md., scored a lopsided decision over European champion Valery Limasov and became the second American to reach the round of 16.

Still, the Americans' chief medal producers remained the matchless men swimmers.

Goodell's time of 3:51.93 was a world record in the 400 meter freestyle, and he had to have it to hold off teammate Tim Shaw, Long Beach, Calif., who finished second.

The relay team knocked more than five seconds off the world record set in the morning by a different quartet. With John Naber, Menlo Park, Calif., swimming the backstroke, John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., the breaststroke, Matt Vogel, Fort Wayne, Ind., the butterfly and Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., the freestyle, the Americans rang up an incredible time of 3:42.22.

Shirley Babashoff, Fountain Valley, Calif., collected her third silver medal of the Games when she finished second to Miss Ender in the 200 meter freestyle.

African pullout helps U.S. chances in track

MONTREAL (AP) — The withdrawal of 30 black nations may have cast a pall over the 21st Olympic Games, but they have brightened considerably the United States' gold medal chances in track and field, which started today.

When the black boycott hit, stars from many third-world nations went home, leaving potential medals behind. Up for grabs now are medals in the men's 1,500-meter run, 800, 400, steeplechase, 5,000 and 10,000 and especially in the 400-meter hurdles.

In the 400 hurdles, John Akii-Bua of Uganda was the defending champion and world record holder, but he won't compete, and suddenly the U.S. trio of Edwin Moses, Quentin Wheeler and Mike Shine appear the class of the field.

Likewise in the 800, Mike Boit of Kenya is gone, leaving favored Rick Wohlhuter with little competition — unless it comes from fellow Americans James Robinson and Mark Enyeart.

And in the 1,500, where John Walker of New Zealand was to meet Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, Walker became the favorite after Tanzania withdrew. But Wohlhuter, the 3:53.3 miler, has entered the 1,500 as well and could give Walker some problems.

African athletes have done exceptionally well in running events in the last decade, but have not made much of a dent internationally in the technique events on the field. In only one field event, the long jump, has the "dope sheet" been disrupted by the pullout.

In that event, Randy Williams and Arnie Robinson of the U.S. were the favorites, but Charlton Ehiuzen of Nigeria and Josh Owusu of Ghana could have challenged.

In today's two final events, the United States had a quick shot at gold.

Young Kathy McMillan was entered against a strong field of Europeans in the women's long jump. Miss McMillan holds the American record of 22 feet, 3 inches, but Sigrun Siegl of East Germany set the world mark of 22-11 1-4 earlier this year. She and teammate Angels Voigt were favored.

Today's other final event, the 20-kilometer walk, was expected to be dominated by Mexicans.

Two years ago, officials in Mexico hired Jorge Hausleber of Poland, considered the finest walking coach in the world. He reformed walking south of the border and three men — Raul Gonzales, Daniel Bautista and Domingo Colin — rank 1-2-3 in the world.

The U.S. walkers, headed by four-time Olympian Ron Laird, had little chance to win.

Field event hopes of the Americans remain very good.

Olympics on TV

MONTREAL (AP) — Finals in the women's long jump and heats in other track and field events take the spotlight today in ABC-TV's coverage of the Summer Olympic Games.

The network plans 1½ hours of coverage, from 8 to 9:30 p.m., EDT, and a 15-minute telecast during the halftime of the College All-Star football game. Olympic events to be televised will not be known until just before airtime because much of the programming will be live.

Among those events scheduled are the women's long jump finals, where American Kathy MacMillan has a chance for a medal; heats in the 800-meter run, where Rick Wohlhuter of the United States is one of the favorites; and heats in the 100-meter dash, where Russian Valery Borzov is attempting to win an unprecedented second victory in a row.

The U.S. boxers and basketball team are expected to compete, and the Russians and Japanese men's gymnastic teams will battle. Princess Anne of Great Britain and other equestrians are scheduled to compete in their second day of dressage (precision riding).

Braves' Morton breaks streak

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After 83 victories in the major leagues, you'd think that another one more or less wouldn't matter to Carl Morton.

But it did Thursday night — it was his first of the 1976 season.

"I was standing behind the fence in right field for the last two outs," said Morton. "When I saw Rob Beloit make the last out, I said to myself: 'It finally happened.'"

Before Atlanta's 7-1 victory over Montreal, Morton had lost eight straight games dating back to 1975. His 0-7 record this season was a situation quite foreign to Morton, a reliable starter used to winning in double figures each season.

"It has been a long, hard year on me," said the right-hander. "It's been tough because I have been a big winner in the last few years — you know, years with 15, 16, 17 wins.

"But there have been seven games this year where we have been leading in the late innings and then weren't able to hold the lead. Then I figured I would just have to go out there and do it all myself. I put more pressure on my pitching and it didn't work. When I did that, I wasn't pitching the way I should have been. Tonight, I made the pitches when I had to."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0; the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 and the San Diego Padres edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 in 11 innings.

Ken Henderson eased the way for Morton's victory by driving in four runs with a homer and a single. Henderson drilled a two-run homer off Woody Fryman, 8-8, in the fourth inning. He chased Fryman to the showers with a single that drove in Jim Wynn and Willie Montanez in the sixth inning.

Phillies 3, Pirates 0
Jay Johnstone's two-run double keyed a three-run first inning and Philadelphia went on to beat Pittsburgh and boost its lead in the National League East to 11 games.

Philadelphia left-hander Tom Underwood checked the Pirates on seven hits.

Financing the Revolution proved no easy task

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

The infant United States of America teetered on the brink of bankruptcy. For want of a bankroll it seemed possible her mendicant Congress might be forced to bargain for peace.

To Benjamin Franklin, ambassador to France, the commander-in-chief, George Washington, wrote: "Our present situation makes one of two things essential to us; peace, or the most vigorous aid of our allies, particularly in the article of money."

It was 1780, the war's darkest year. The article of money had long been as scarce as battlefield victories for the Continentals.

In another context the word Continental was now a synonym for worthlessness. "Not worth a Continental." We use the phrase still. It refers to the unsecured paper dollars issued by the Continental Congress. Soon it would be interchangeable with another bromide: "Not worth the paper it's printed on."

From 1775 to the end of the Revolution in 1783, the income of the Congress, valued in hard — that is to say coined or specie — money came to roughly $65.9 million. Not much when you consider that the army which fought at Bunker Hill cost $275,000 a month to keep. Of that, soldiers and sailors salaries alone, counting post war pensions, totaled $70 million.

As modest a sum as it was, every dollar was as hard to come by as footwear at Valley Forge.

When Congress assumed control of the war in 1775 the delegates found their government had no assets. There was no way to pay the bills.

Someone suggested printing paper money. Bills of credit they were called. Tax revenues were to provide enough hard cash to redeem the issue. Unfortunately, Congress didn't have much power to tax.

Panel named to implement new state law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Representatives of nine insurance companies have been named to a committee that will handle implementation of a new state law insuring medical malpractice insurance coverage for all doctors and hospitals.

Named to head the advisory committee on Thursday was Gustav V. Lehr of the MFA Insurance Co. Other firms represented on the panel are the Medical Protective Insurance Co., United States Fidelity and Guaranty, State Farm Mutual, St. Paul Insurance Co., Aetna Life and Casualty, Continental Insurance and R. B. Jones Insurance.

The committee will oversee any operations under a new law, that goes into effect Aug. 13, which will require all insurance companies operating in the state to provide adequate malpractice insurance coverage to doctors if such insurance is no longer voluntarily offered by insurance firms.

Man is killed in car-truck crash

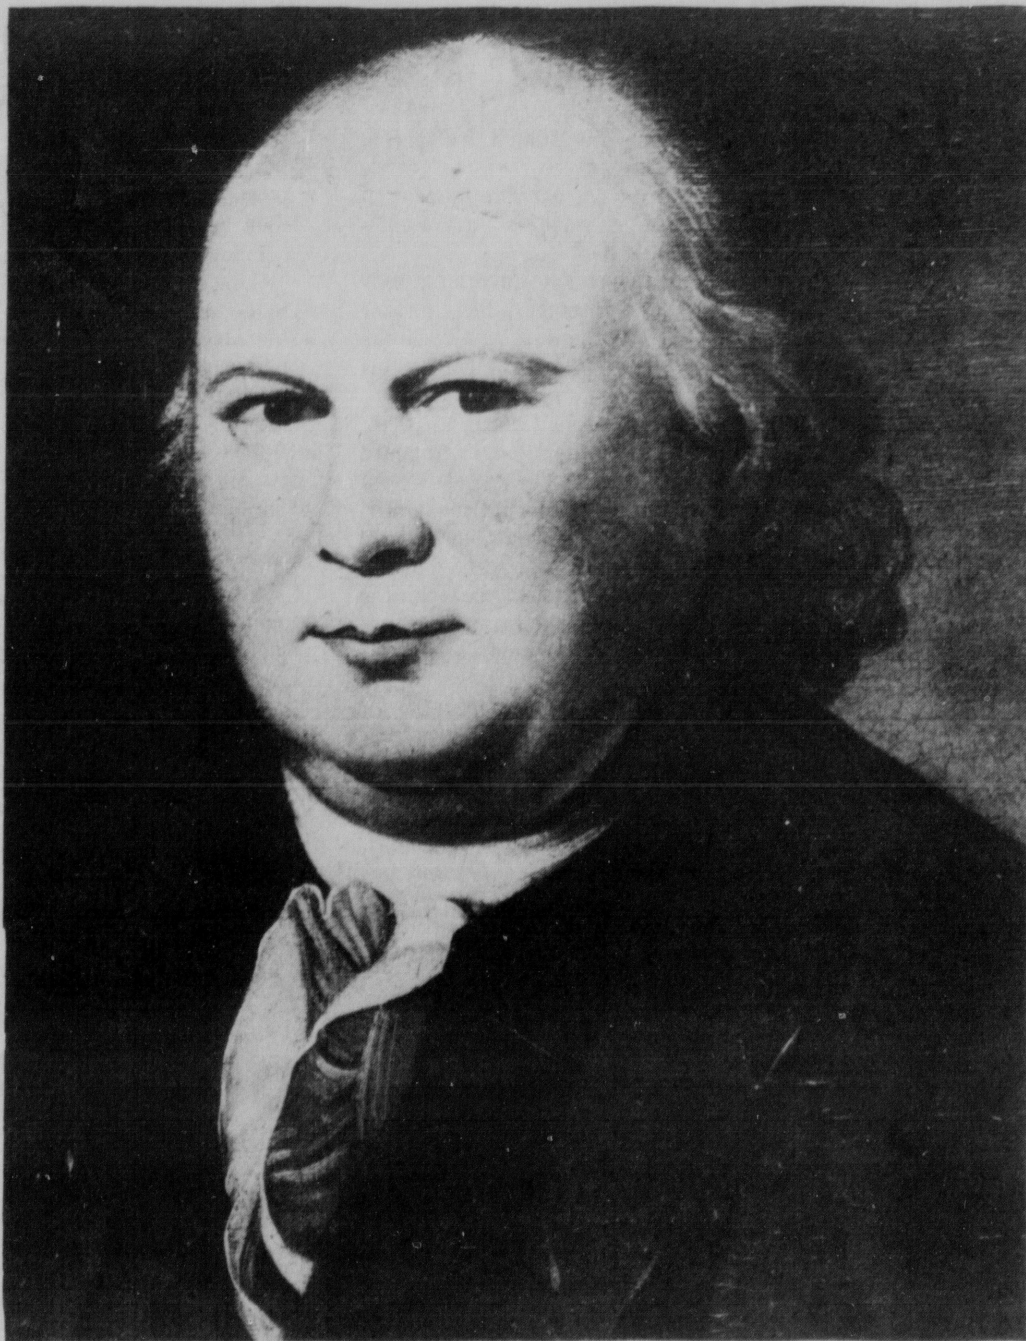

FERGUSON, Mo. (AP) — An office machinery repairman for Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville was killed Thursday in an accident on Interstate 270, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

Thomas D. King, 47, of Alton, was killed when the university-owned station wagon he was driving struck the rear end of a Missouri State Highway Department truck.

Authorities said King was westbound, when he came up on the truck, which was behind a highway sweeper. Apparently unable to avoid a collision, King skidded 60 feet before striking the back of the truck.

The truck was knocked into a concrete highway divider. The truck driver suffered neck and back injuries. Authorities said the truck had a flashing arrow as a warning sign on the back when it was hit.

On April 12, 1861, South Carolina troops attacked Fort Sumter, forcing Union troops to evacuate, and touching off the Civil War.

Problem solver

Robert Morris, portrayed here, is the wealthy Philadelphia merchant prince who became keeper of the nation's purse and financier of the Revolution. Financing the Revolution was America's first fiscal crisis and Morris helped solve it. His greatest contributions were made after 1781, when he began to restore the public credit, reorganized the Treasury and established a national bank. (AP)

Man gets credit for saving girl's life

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A north St. Louis man was credited by doctors Thursday with saving the life of a one-year-old girl, police said.

Ronald Jones, 28, used mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to revive Nichole Nelson Thursday, after she was found floating face down in a tub of water.

The child's baby sitter, Robin Turner, 17, told police she left Nichole in the bathtub when the telephone rang.

When she returned and found the baby unconscious, Miss Turner took her to the Jones' home nearby. The child was admitted to Homer G. Phillips in serious condition.

Named by Bond

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Thomas Anderson, a Kansas City Democrat, has been named to the Missouri House Development Commission by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Anderson, a professor emeritus of sociology at Avila College, was named on Thursday to complete the term of the late Barney J. Alcott of Maryville. A spokesman for the governor said Anderson will then be reappointed this fall to a full four year term ending Oct. 13, 1980.

Inflation raged. One gold dollar was soon worth 50 to 100 paper bills. In March 1780, the government repudiated its currency, agreeing to redeem $40 in paper for one dollar in gold. But the new paper sank to 135 to 1, then to 500 to 1, finally to 900 to 1. It cost more to print the paper than it was worth.

At one point Congress' credit was so bad the ladies of Philadelphia were able to raise more supplies for the army than the beggar government.

When there was begging to be done the bite usually was put on the King of France, Louis XV.

King Louis didn't care too much for the English. He wasn't particularly solicitous of their American cousins either. What interested him was trade, and the folks across the channel had controlled too many lucrative markets for too long.

A little liberation of the American merchant should pay some dividend, his advisors counseled. At worst the war would erode both English and American positions in the marketplace.

At first the aid, much of it munitions, was semi-secret. After an alliance was signed in 1778, the King openly funneled not only an army and a navy but $9.3 million in loans and subsidies to the rebels. Spain was good for another $650,000. Foreign loans totaled $11.6 million by 1783.

Louis probably deserves the Morris somehow found $410 in Spanish coin and spare change to pay spies and $50,000 in paper to cover recruitment bounties.

In 1781, as the army moved toward Yorktown, Morris secured $20,000 in hard money to help finance the march and pay the troops. It was borrowed from the French, the states and his pocket. When it was disbursed, Maj. William Popham thought the day would be "famous in the annals of history for being the first time in which the troops of the United States received one month's pay in specie." That was the sum Washington promised those who would fight Cornwallis.

Merchants in general did well in the war trade and they were anxious to protect their business. They purchased bonds, accepted the depreciated dollars as long as they could, and were otherwise useful. New England merchants loaned the army title Financier of the Revolution. But it went to Robert Morris, a wealthy Philadelphia exporter and importer who became keeper of the government's purse as chairman of the Committee of Commerce and later Superintendent of Finance.

Morris was an opportunist. Of the $2 million worth of expenditures the committee made by 1777, about one-quarter was paid to his own company. There were no conflict of interest laws in those days and his fellow congressmen didn't hold it against him. Nor did they object to Morris and other merchants shipping private goods on public vessels.

In fairness, Morris performed valuable service. In 1781, for example, he substituted his personal credit for the nation's by issuing his own currency.

Washington never forgot that in 1776, as his army licked its wounds in New Jersey, 30,000 pounds in coin for supplies in August 1780. A year later Baltimore traders bought uniforms for Lafayette's troops and Virginia merchants offered to pay for their weapons.

Of course, Lafayette was protecting Maryland and Virginia from Cornwallis at the time.

Morris' most important contributions came after Yorktown. Returning to Congress after a period in private business, he began in July 1781 to restore the public credit through the use of private credit and the payment of debts. He reorganized the Treasury, established a national bank, augmented the collection of revenues and streamlined methods of expenditure.

Morris was one of the richest men of his time in America, but he eventually lost everything in land speculation. He spent three years of his old age in debtors' prison.

Until Morris' reforms, financing had been more imaginative but less effective. A popular practice was seizure of Loyalist property for sale at auction. Lotteries were tried but yielded a pittance. Bonds, about $11.5 million worth, were sold to the rich but interest and redemption was often in Continentals.

Requisitions were made on state governments which complied if the spirit moved them. It moved them only to the amount of about $5.7 million.

Once, John Jay and Henry Laurens were sent abroad to seek loans in Madrid and The Netherlands. Notes worth $200,000 were issued in expectation of their success before Laurens ever sailed and while Jay was still at sea. As it was, Laurens was captured and taken to London. Jay reached Spain, which loaned money to America.

Washington found one effective medium of exchange, the certificate of importment. Armed soldiers were sent to farms and to merchants to offer the negotiable certificates in exchange for sustenance and supplies. Few farmers and merchants refused. From 1779 until war's end the total value in hard currency of the interest-bearing certificates was $16.7 million.

None of the nation's revenue measures was ever sufficient. To save money Congress was forced to discharge some soldiers in early 1780 before their enlistments were up. Washington was reduced to 60 regiments and 25,000 men.

The French General Jean Comte de Rochambeau wrote home that year: "Send us ships, troops and money but do not depend on these people nor upon their means."

Why Road & Track felt comfortable about picking the Rabbit.

Remarkable passenger space

An amazing 87% of the Rabbit's total space is devoted to people and luggage.

Only 13% is stingly allowed to the engine and drive train. The result? The Rabbit actually has as much head and leg room as some mid-size cars. But space is only one of the areas where Rabbit excels. All of the features of our car — body construction, handling and performance — contribute to a sense of safety and security. We at Volkswagen know that we have to put your mind at rest before you can rest easily on your seat.

"Best car in the world under $3500"

Teachers quit area schools

KNOB NOSTER — Resignations of two teachers were accepted at the July meeting of the Knob Noster Board of Education.

Marsha Willis, grade one teacher at Whiteman, and Larry Harmon, fifth grade teacher at Knob Noster, resigned. Also resigning were Mrs. Mabel Baker, secretary at Whiteman School, and Mrs. Kathleen Epple, manager of the Knob Noster Elementary School lunchroom.

Contracts were approved and accepted by Mrs. Barbara Hetcko, first grade teacher at Whiteman, and Mrs. Chris Hall, nurse at Whiteman elementary and the senior high school. Also, Jack Rowell was approved for a custodial position at the senior high.

Rodger Boyle, board member, was reelected as secretary of the board and Don Bollenbach was reelected as district treasurer.

The bids to repair hail damage and roof deterioration on the school buildings were considered at a special meeting June 17 and a repair contract was let to White Sheet Metal and Roofing Co., Clinton. White's base bid was $29,606.00 compared to the next bid of $32,522.80. An amount of $2,312 was added to the contract to provide a fourth ply to the gravel roof to be installed on portions of the senior high. Insurance will cover $18,679.00 of the total cost.

Consideration was given to replacing damaged ceiling tile in the Knob Noster Elementary School corridor, carpeting the elementary speech room, repairing the Whiteman School playground, improving the senior high driveway, installing an additional refrigerator in the senior high home economics department and installing storage cabinets in the senior high shop. The ceiling repair work and the refrigerator were approved with all other items being postponed.

Sedalians to present concerts

Marjorie L. Steen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Steen, 1319 South Barrett, and Wiley Hausam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Hausam, 906 Royal Blvd., will appear in musical concert this summer.

Miss Steen, a 1976 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, will hold a piano recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the State Fair Community College student union and Hausam will appear in a vocal concert at 8 p.m. Aug. 10 at the SFCC union. Both concerts are free-of-charge.

Miss Steen will perform works by Bach, Beethoven, Rachmaninoff and Milhaud at the Tuesday recital.

Hausam will perform pieces in several musical styles and periods including examples of the German "lied," 19th century French and Italian art songs, oratorio and opera arias, English folk songs and songs by such American composers as Samuel Barber and Charles Ives. He will also sing selections by Purcell, Handel, Schumann, Bononcini, Leoncavallo, Faure and Debussy.

Yosemite Falls is located in Yosemite National Park in California.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Doctor says 'no' to cream

Dear Dr. Lamb — My face is really starting to wrinkle, sometimes it feels so tired I can almost feel the muscles breaking down, a sort of a stinging feeling. Are there any exercises that will help me any at all?

I have always taken care of my skin by using face creams, but I never use any greasy creams for sleeping at night.

I know there isn't much that can be done for wrinkles, but anything you can advise me on would be greatly appreciated. I have heard of some people using Preparation H ointment for wrinkles. Would this be harmful to the skin?

Dear Reader — I hear a lot of things through the letters from readers but I have never heard of using Preparation H ointment for face wrinkles. No, I would not recommend it for face wrinkles nor, for that matter, for hemorrhoids.

Preparation H contains phenylmercuric nitrate, an organic compound of mercury which is supposed to have some antiseptic effect. However, the mercury is fixed by the superficial cells of the tissues and does not penetrate to have any real beneficial effects on bacteria. I am not fond of the use of mercury anyway for any purpose. Preparation H contains shark liver oil and a live yeast cell derivative.

Of those ingredients the shark liver oil might help your face in the same way any moisturizer would. You can get that effect from Vaseline or any oil. The oil over the skin surface prevents the skin from losing excess moisture and in that way helps prevent wrinkles temporarily.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 66 years old and have these brown spots on the back of my hands and spreading up my arms and to my neck. Could this mean there is something wrong with my liver and could it be serious? I've been told these are liver spots. I do worry about this.

Dear Reader — They are called liver spots but they have nothing at all to do with the liver. They are the result of prolonged exposure to the sun over years and years and they are most common on the backs of the hands. They are often classified as part of aging of the skin but they are really caused by the sun.

Everyone should be aware that the sun is responsible for most of the aging effects we see in the skin. There is no way you can maintain or have repeated tans without aging or damaging the skin. The skin changes occur years later

Polly's pointers

Boiling water battles ants

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I think Mrs. T.C.R. should use corn meal when the original slickness wears off her playing cards. Shuffle the cards through cornmeal and they will soon handle like new ones. There is no dust or powder to choke you. I have done this many times and find it really works. — DEE.

DEAR POLLY — I have had a Pet Peeve for a long time, but yesterday fuel was added to the fire. At least four features on the editorial page of our paper had the writers' names spelled in small letters. How can a teacher teach a child the proper method of capitalizing proper names when they see such as this? Is this a fad? I realize it is not new and, if it is, what is the advantage? I have always felt that a child born with a real desire to read had an advantage over one who disliked reading but NOW with this new wrinkle I am afraid they will have to decide just when a person deserves having his name begin with a capital letter. — OLD FASHIONED.

DEAR POLLY — Our three year old daughter watches a lot of television, and she always sat too close to the set. I seemed to be always telling her to scoot back further. My husband hit on the idea of putting a long strip of tape on the carpet in front of the TV and back to the distance where we wanted her to sit. This works beautifully. She knows she is not to cross over the line and no more constant nagging is required.

She used to start crying when it was bedtime at night or time to come in for lunch, a nap, etc., but now we tell her that when the big hand on the clock reaches a certain place then that is it. This way she knows about how much time she has left and at the same time is learning to tell time. There is no more crying and sometimes she sits and eagerly watches and waits for that big hand to reach that certain number. — MRS. S.G.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — We do not approve of insecticides, so we rarely use them. The last two years our lawn has been infected with ants. At first there were only two hills, but last summer we were surrounded. We dug two feet down in one spot and bagged swarms of them. This seems to occur only in the front lawn that gets a lot of sun. The shady back yard presents no problem. I would appreciate some help. — MRS. W.W.

DEAR MRS. W.W. — It seems you should first locate the ant's nest. That might be in decayed wood, in the ground or under paving or stones. When located, pour boiling water in the nest to kill the colony of ants. — POLLY. (NEA)

Do-it- yourself

By

Duane Furnell

The maintenance and repair of household electrical appliances can be done readily with the aid of common hand tools such as those used for other house chores, for car work, for adjustment of lawn mowers and snow blowers, etc. In fact, anything that cannot be done with hand tools usually cannot be done at all at home, or for that matter even in so-called professional shops.

Sometimes a three-second application of a soldering gun to a broken connection restores a previously dead appliance to full working condition; or tightening a few screws on a grill puts the heating wires back into proper position and eliminates dangerous sparking; or a half-turn with a wrench cures a leak in a blender or coffee pot.

If you're new at the game of doing things around the house yourself—a role forced on virtually all men because of the cost and incompetence of "professionals"—you will learn by visiting any hardware store that tools are plentiful and inexpensive. Used properly, they will last a very long time and are therefore good investments.

Please tell me where I can write Jon Peters, the guy Barbra Streisand is seeing. This is very important. — P.G., Virginia Beach, Va.

You could write him at offices at The Burbank Studios, but then you could also write him at the Jon Peters Beauty Salon, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Not missed at all

I missed the Donny and Marie Osmond special on ABC. Any chance it will be repeated? — Roy Yamamoto, Chicago, Ill.

There is no repeat scheduled for the special. However, Donny and Marie now have their own series on ABC-TV on Friday nights, so you can see them every week.

He's still here

What has happened to Michael Brandon? After "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom" and "The Red Badge of Courage," I haven't seen him much. — Linda Schultz, Casselberry, Fla.

Dummy patrolman

By OWEN HARDY
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

GREEN RIDGE — When this town decided to crack down on its speed limit violators, it didn't kid around. First it brought in the radar gun. Now there's a dummy on the loose.

Sitting at the southeast corner of Minnehaha and Main is Green Ridge police car 10, apparently waiting patiently for speed limit violators. But inside the car, clad in an old army fatigue uniform and wearing officer Dick Brouillette's cowboy hat, sits a life-sized dummy.

"A lot of people around here are saying, 'Which one's the dummy?'" says Brouillette, referring to townspeople's reaction to his idea of keeping old car 10 in service for a few days longer. A new replacement police car is to be bought for this small community of 403 persons within the next few weeks.

Brouillette is convinced his idea is working. "It definitely slows them down," he says, "particularly in the twilight of the evening," when people can just see the dummy's silhouette. During the day he says, the dummy's identity is a bit more conspicuous. "I was thinking about cutting out a big picture of a face for it but I never did," Brouillette says.

Car 10, a 1974 ex-highway patrol car whose speedometer has "turned over at least once," was purchased by the town during the first part of last year, Brouillette says. The engine was shot, the power steering didn't work and it was time to get a new car, he says. The idea of leaving the old car out to deter speeders was his, he says, explaining, "we might as well get some use out of it." Brouillette says he installed the "patrolman" in his car last Saturday and has changed the car's location every day since then. He keeps the car in the same general area, however, because it is difficult to move very far.

Mayor Barbara Stark feels the idea fits in well with the town's crackdown on speed limit violators. When catching sight of the stone-faced dummy, "people have turned around and looked and slowed down, but if that's the reaction, that's fine with me — that's what we want," she says.

"We had a lot of reaction to the radar gun," she says, when the hand-held unit, which can detect speeders by simply pointing the gun at a passing car, was purchased last March. "That was the first law enforcement we've had around Green Ridge in quite a while."

The "reaction" of people here was mostly negative, as evidenced by the "Welcome to Green Ridge's Radar" sign just south of town. But after a while, Mayor Stark says, most of the townspeople realized that enforcement of the speed limit laws was here to stay. "They learned," she says.

The speed limit, by the way, on Main Street, which is also Highway 127, starts down from 55 miles per hour to 45 miles per hour at the city limits on either side of town. After 400 feet it goes down to 35 and three blocks later it sinks to a snail-crawling 25. Needless to say, Brouillette's radar gun is seldom "out of action."

Meanwhile, Green Ridge's dummy policeman sits silently waiting for unwary speeders, his one-quart-styrofoam-water-jug head peering solemnly straight in front of him. Word

Congress votes override of $3.3 billion job bill

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress enacted a $3.95-billion public works employment bill Thursday over President Ford's veto but failed to override his veto of a $3.3-billion military construction bill.

The House had voted to reject the veto of the military construction bill that Ford said would interfere with his power to close unneeded U.S. military bases.

But the Senate vote on overriding was 51 to 42, or 11 short of the required two-thirds majority.

President Ford issued a statement saying he was "keenly disappointed" by the congressional action in enacting the public works bill.

Ford said Congress is not sufficiently concerned about "the risks of double digit inflation," adding: "It would rather create $4 billion worth of temporary, government-funded jobs than let those same dollars go to work in the private sector to produce real, rewarding, lasting jobs."

The House vote on the public service jobs bill was 310 to 96, or 39 more than the required two-thirds. Only 15 Democrats voted to sustain the veto, while 57 Republicans joined 233 Democrats in voting to override.

The Senate voted 73 to 24 Wednesday to override, so the House action was final.

To override the military construction veto, the House voted 270 to 131, two more than the required two-thirds, with 228 Democrats and 42 Republicans voting to override, 37 Democrats and 94 Republicans to sustain.

Political charges and countercharges marked the House debate on the jobs bill, with emphasis on Ford's two-year record of 53 vetoes. This was the ninth veto to be overridden.

The legislation authorizes $2 billion for grants to state and local government for public works that can be started within 90 days. It also authorizes $1.25 billion in grants for state and local governments in high unemployment areas to maintain essential services and avoid layoffs.

Supporters said the bill will create 200,000 jobs while protecting another 90,000 state and local government jobs.

The bill also authorizes $700 million for waste water treatment works. Actual funds for all the programs depend on votes later on appropriations.

Declaring that "the House has clearly shown it recognizes the need to relieve unemployment," Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts credited Democratic congressional initiatives for the improvement up to now in the economy.

"This bill is crucial to maintain the momentum," he said.

Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said that "this bill is designed mainly to attract votes in November."

"It is a cruel hoax to ask people to put faith in a program like this," he said, arguing that the jobs created, even if they reached the 300,000 figure cited by Democrats, would be only temporary.

Uncommitted delegates pressured to decide

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Perhaps the opinions of some south St. Louis Republicans will be able to do what President Ford and Ronald Reagan haven't done so far — take four of Missouri's national GOP delegates "off the fence."

Despite a telephone call from the President and a meeting with the former California governor, four of Missouri's 49-member delegation to the national convention remain uncommitted. And three of them have turned to newspapers to solicit advice from their constituents.

While the uncommitted are still wondering who to vote for, some confirmed delegates are receiving calls from those in opposing camps, hoping for a switch.

After the state GOP convention last month, Missouri's delegation was divided into 29 delegates for Reagan, 16 for Ford and four uncommitted.

Since then, those four from the 3rd Congressional District of south St. Louis city and county have been seeking and getting advice on whom they should support.

Marlene Zinsel had just had her hair set at a beauty shop Saturday when Ford called seeking her support.

But despite that conversation and an hour-long meeting with Reagan July 8 in Chicago, she's still uncommitted.

Mrs. Zinsel and another unpledged delegate, William Olenyik, placed an advertisement in a suburban newspaper Wednesday, asking readers whom they should support at the national convention which begins Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

By late Thursday, three responses had been received, Olenyik said, all of them for Reagan.

"They were answering on the basis of his (Reagan's) pro-life stand and his position on amnesty," Olenyik said.

Both said the final results of the poll would be a factor in their decision between the two presidential nomination contenders.

Fred Whaley, another uncommitted, has been conducting a poll through a newspaper ad for the past two weeks.

"It's surprising how close it is," Whaley said of the 200 responses he's received so far. He said at first Reagan appeared to have the edge but that the two candidates are "very close" up to this point. Whaley declined to provide exact figures.

"We hope to get about 500 replies from all over the district. That would be a good sampling," he said.

Whaley added that he would like to see a GOP presidential slate which puts both candidates to use.

"I don't care which is first or second, the ticket would be a winner," he said.

Although the fourth unpledged delegate, William Skaggs, has not conducted a poll, he's getting plenty of free advice just the same.

"People from all over have been calling me, some I know and some I don't," Skaggs said. "I didn't start keeping score, but it has not been that far apart. It's very close."

John Powell, a delegate who headed up Reagan's campaign in Missouri, said he knew of no changes in the state delegation's makeup.

"I think the Missouri delegation, except for the uncommitted, is not changeable on either side," Powell said.

But some committed delegates are receiving telephone calls from opposing camps.

Joe Swarts, a Reagan supporter from Kansas City, got a call last week from Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., a Ford supporter.

More troops against Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A third battalion of Ugandan troops joined 2,000 soldiers already in revolt against President Idi Amin, Kenya's largest newspaper claimed today.

The Nation, quoting unnamed sources, reported the rebel soldiers vowed to "fight to the death" unless drastic measures are taken "to bring about an orderly government in Uganda."

There has been no confirmation of the newspaper's reports from other sources. Ugandan radio has made no mention of a revolt.

Kenya and Uganda have been engaged in a verbal war for several months, ever since Amin claimed a portion of Kenya actually belonged to his country. Relations worsened after the July 4 Israeli raid on Entebbe airport to rescue more than 100 hijack hostages.

Many discouraged by disclosure law

That all-important backbone of local and county politics, precinct or township party committeemen and women, are in short supply this year because of the new campaign finance disclosure law, local Republican and Democratic leaders said Thursday.

Under the state provisions, candidates for these positions are subject to the same financial scrutiny as persons running for local, county and state offices. This means they must disclose the source, but not the amount, of any income they receive exceeding $1,000.

For professional persons, this calls for itemizing amounts paid (if over $1,000) by patients or clients. Also, other sources of $1,000 or more in personal income during the 12 months preceding the election, such as stocks and bonds, must be listed in official reports.

Finally, candidates are required to submit similar information on income earned by their spouse or members of their immediate family during the 12 months before the election if such income exceeds $500.

For many persons, who view serving as a neighborhood committeeman or woman to be simply a voluntary service to their party, such rigid disclosure requirements are discouraging, party leaders reported.

One committeeman and woman are elected from each of the city's 16 precincts (total of 32) and each of the county's 18 rural townships (total of 36). The Democrats have been able to muster up candidates for 27 precinct positions and 28 township posts. Mrs. Ruth Lindsey, president of the Pettis County Democratic Womens Club, said "it will be difficult to fill some of these vacancies because we have lost some good committeemen and women."

County chairman George Breeze and other party workers will have to assume many of the doorbell-ringing, car-driving and other election-time activities in areas where no committeemen or women are elected, Mrs. Lindsey said.

According to the Republican sample ballot, nine spots have been filled in the city, leaving 23 vacancies. On the county level, again nine spots have been filled, leaving 27 vacancies.

Republican County chairman Hank Monsee also attributed the decline in committeemen and women candidates to the regulations. He noted that persons could write in the name of persons in the primary election to serve as committeemen and women for the November general election.

British writers comment

Feeling of renaissance in U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The "amazing" United States has embarked on a renaissance marked by optimism, idealism, the good life and a high level of political discourse, say two British columnists.

"Our society has degenerated since I was last in the States, and theirs has much improved," wrote Daily Express columnist George Gale, fresh from a trip to Washington and New York. "The cities are still dirtier than ours, but the service is no longer as surly as it was. The Bicentennial celebrations helped a great deal. Vietnam is over. Watergate's scars are healing fast."

The London Evening Standard's Max Hastings, in a column from New York, declared that "this amazing new America" has begun a period of national resurgence in the year of its bicentennial and a presidential election.

Wrote Gale: "I have never before returned to this country from the United States feeling that as far as the quality of life was concerned we had much to learn."

The two commentators said this new America should be a model for Britain.

"Remembering the gloom and dismay of the late '60s and early '70s here," Hastings wrote, "it is amazing to see the optimism, the idealism, the passionate belief that the system can be reformed and made to work, which are dominating this presidential election year."

"The American view that they can reform their country is an inspiration to an English visitor, coming here from a nation in such deep doubt as to whether it can save itself. The great moral debates in America seem immeasurably more exciting than our own stale, ceaseless struggle about who is to have what share of the shrinking cake."

Writing under the headline, "America has shown me what a mess we're in," Gale also noted a contrast between British and U.S. politics.

"British politics centers around the parliamentary play," he said. "Much of what the public sees and hears are fake duels. The American political process is more complex, more continuous, far more concerned with real interests and deals than with rigmarole."

"The result is that the general level of Viking makes it; now what's next?

In some ways, Viking's set-down on Mars seems even more spectacular than America's landing on the moon, which — coincidentally — occurred seven years ago to the day. (Seven years?!)

Mars, more so than the moon, has always been shrouded in mystery. In the first place, it's much farther away — 213 million miles — and then there's that thing about life on the Red Planet, which has captured man's imagination for as long as he has been able to see Mars.

In another week Viking will scoop up some Martian soil to begin three experiments designed to detect life on the planet if it exists. As breath-taking as Tuesday's flawless landing was, this will really be the big payoff. Barring some creature lumbering into view of Viking's cameras, these highly technical experiments should tell us if life — as we know it — is present on Mars.

Viking is the culmination of an eight-year project, and must be considered one of the greatest scientific and technological achievements of our time. The Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., has every reason to whoop and holler.

A not insignificant part of the whole business is the fact that Viking succeeded — at least to this point — where two Soviet attempts failed after reaching the Martian surface. Such crowing may not be in very good taste detente-wise, but it still feels good.

It boggles the mind to consider what the effect would be if Viking succeeds in finding life — which could range from either microscopic traces to something more elaborate. You think Watergate created a fuss?

We'll be holding our breath, as will the rest of planet Earth.

Mother and kid: a new problem found

WASHINGTON — Republican strategists met this week to discuss the Democratic National Convention and the Carter-Mondale ticket. They were worried about what they had seen on television.

Buchwald

One of them said, "I think we can handle Carter and Mondale, but what are we going to do about the kid and the mother?"

"What kid and what mother?" someone else asked.

"Amy Carter and Miss Lillian. An 8-year-old kid and a 77-year-old mother are a tough combination to beat, particularly when they're both eager to campaign."

"Our research people have been trying to dig up stuff on them. You know the kid doubled the price on lemonade she was selling to reporters in Plains, Ga., from a nickel to a dime. Can we do anything with that?"

"Only if we want to knock the free enterprise system. Don't forget one of the planks of our platform is to let the businessman charge whatever the lemonade market will permit. By doubling her price when there was a shortage, Amy was following the Republican philosophy. If we attack her on the lemonade issue, it could backfire on us."

"I guess you're right. Are there any skeletons in her closet that we can leak to the press?"

"We found one skeleton, but it was from a Halloween Party she went to last year. We can't do anything with that."

"There's got to be something. An 8-year-old kid is always getting into trouble. Has she hit any kids in school?"

"If she has, they aren't talking. You know how Southerners clam up when someone comes around asking questions."

"Okay, let's forget the kid for a moment. What have we got on the mother?"

"Nothing. She looks like everybody's mother, or at least like everybody would like his mother to look. Frankly I think we better lay off Miss Lillian or we could get a lot of voters angry at us."

"Good grief. This woman is dangerous. She could wipe us out on the talk shows."

Richardson finds reputation fading

By JACK ANDERSON with
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, the White Knight of the Republican Party, has fallen off his charger.

Richardson is the former attorney general who assumed heroic status two years ago when he refused a White House order to dismiss Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and got himself fired for his courage.

This earned Richardson a reputation for integrity that has now made him a vice presidential prospect. His presence on the ticket, his supporters contend, would help to defuse the Watergate issue.

But his shining reputation has now lost some of its luster. He heads a White House task force which is reviewing U.S. corporate bribery of foreign officials. The bribes were uncovered by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The scandal has rocked the world, embarrassing governments from Italy to Japan. It has also produced some red faces in corporate board rooms.

The Commerce Department which Richardson now heads, usually has shown great sympathy and understanding for the corporate moguls with whom it deals. Swayed perhaps by his new environment, Richardson has written a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., attacking the SEC.

The SEC was operating on "tenuous legal grounds," he charged during the bribery investigation. Therefore, he opposed legislation that would give the SEC a major role in probing corporate payoffs.

The original drafts of Richardson's letter, we have learned, contained even stronger criticism of the SEC. But cooler heads on the task force staff persuaded him to edit out the harsher language.

Richardson's attack upon the SEC appalled his task force colleagues. Another Cabinet member, who serves with Richardson on the task force, lambasted the letter as "disgraceful" and "dangerous." Other colleagues whom he polled called it a "mistake" and "ill-advised." Not a single member of the task force defended Richardson.

In the backrooms of the SEC, meanwhile, the Richardson letter has had a demoralizing effect. The SEC happens to be one of the few federal agencies that has resisted political pressure and has investigated powerful corporations fearlessly. Over 100 corporations have been investigated on bribery charges.

SEC Chairman Roderick Hills returned Richardson's fire with a sizzling letter calling Richardson's remarks "unfounded, inappropriate and ill-timed." This carried extra impact because the two men have been close friends. Indeed, Richardson was responsible for bringing Hills and his wife, Carla, to Washington.

When Richardson was attorney general, he offered Carla a job at the Justice Department. When he was defense secretary, he offered a Pentagon position to Roderick. Richardson also supported Carla Hills for the Cabinet. She is now secretary of housing and urban development.

Richardson has apologized for the strong language he used against the SEC. But he still wants to exclude the SEC from a major role in curbing foreign bribery.

Footnote: Richardson told us his criticism of the SEC was intended strictly as a legal argument. As for the criticism by his colleagues, he said: "I wish they would tell me those things to my face."

NEW MEXICO MANEUVER: Just four days before New Mexico Republicans selected their presidential delegates, President Ford ordered the Agriculture Department to fund a pest control program in New Mexico.

The department didn't want to spend the money. Its officials had told ranchers to buy their own insecticides to control the caterpillars which infest their ranges. For months, Agriculture officials resisted pressure from the ranchers.

But Ford overruled the Agriculture Dept. He issued his order on June 22, just 90 minutes after assuring Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., that "I'll do my darndest." The President wanted Domenici's support in the showdown with Ronald Reagan over New Mexico delegates.

Four days later, New Mexico Republicans met. It turned out that the free federal pesticides didn't impress them. Reagan won all of New Mexico's 21 delegates.

Footnote: Domenici confirmed our facts but said he had not discussed the New Mexico delegate situation at the same time that he had asked the President for federal help to fight the caterpillars. But on previous occasions, Domenici admitted, he discussed presidential politics with Ford. The pest control program, incidentally, will cost the taxpayers about $500,000 this year.

Favors Amendment 7

After carefully reading your article on Amendment No. 7 should be defeated, I feel that I should state the way I feel. You say that state aid for textbooks, transportation and aid to the handicapped would override four distinct articles of the Missouri Constitution. Doesn't it seem strange to you that over 40 of our states already provide state aid to private schools for textbooks, transportation and aid to the handicapped and it is about time for Missouri to do the same.

You say that this will cause the taxpayers to spend approximately 7 to 30 million dollars a year, but did you stop to think that if all the private schools were to close down it would cost the taxpayers over $100,000,000 a year? So we as taxpayers seem to be getting a pretty good bargain by having the private schools furnish their own schools, teachers, etc. You also say that taxes would surely have to be raised to support this aid to both elementary and secondary schools, but I am sure that you must know that when the state counts the students of Missouri to figure out their budget to run the schools that all students in public and private schools are counted.

So when you use your high figure of 30 million dollars aid to the private schools the taxpayers are saving over 75 million dollars a year by having private and parochial schools.

Therefore, I feel that Amendment No. 7 should be passed and certainly not defeated.

103 E. 28th

John White

(Between 1970 and 1974 some 75 Missouri Catholic schools declined by more than 20,000 pupils. But at the same time the state's public school enrollment dropped by more than 37,000 due to lower birth rates. Many observers feel that the public schools could easily absorb parochial school transfers. We hope it won't come to this — for the parochial schools sake — but it probably could be done without that much of a problem. — Ed.)

In Carter, blacks see new hope

By TOM TIEDE
NEA News Analysis

WASHINGTON — Abraham Lincoln gave, black people freedom. Lyndon Johnson gave them opportunity, and now Jimmy Carter may be on the verge of offering them the ultimate American experience: power.

Tiede

At this late date in history, with Negroes all but free of their miserable shackles, the election of any Democratic president would likely portend the final elevation of the black leader. But a Carter administration may offer particular assurances. He has said repeatedly he would name blacks to positions they have not before held in government, and taken at his word, which he forever reminds us is inviolate, his options are exciting — the cabinet, maybe even the vice presidency in 1980 or '84.

Surely Carter has reason to reward the black community with the influence it has been denied in America for more than 400 years. Without its support he might have risen no higher in life than a goober digger in Georgia. Blacks helped him become a governor there in 1970. They gave him credence as a "man for all the people" during the critical early periods of the past presidential primaries, and they shamed the liberal members of his party into stepping aside for his recent nomination. Now again, if the November race is close, black energy may be the element that propels Carter into the White House.

Not that the black leadership has been all that helpful all this while. Until April of this year only two prominent Negroes actively supported the smiler: Martin Luther King Sr. and Georgia Rep. Andrew Young. But neither have the leaders been hostile, for the most part, nor have they joined with white politics in the suspicions over Carter's southern origins. Without smears, then, Carter was able to attract 75 per cent of the black vote in Florida, 90 per cent in North Carolina, etc., and he is known to be grateful.

Very likely his immediate gratitude will benefit Andy Young the most. A two-term Congressman from Atlanta, his total support for Carter has already brought him from obscurity to high influence. Never in history has a black man been so close to a man so close to the presidency. Carter aides say he now advises the candidate across the board, and expect him to serve in a Carter administration as a cabinet member, possibly secretary of the $100-billion-a-year HEW. Eventually he could become the first black vice-presidential nominee.

Then there is Barbara Jordan, the black vice-presidential nominee from the Texas delegation to the House of Representatives. She has not until recently embraced Carter, but officers of the campaign say she could in a Democratic period become both the most powerful woman and black in America. At the Democratic convention she was touted as fine material for everything from attorney general to the Supreme Court. And for the short run, say Carter people, she is most obviously a candidate to be the fourth woman cabinet secretary in history.

Beyond Young and Jordan, however, the high spots would not be so easily filled with known names. Many blacks are qualified for true power, but most of those who come to mind are not acceptable to either Carter or the bulk of the American people. The rise to influence for blacks has usually meant a parallel accommodation with a militancy that is popularly worrisome. Of noted Negroes in Congress, for example, John Conyers of Michigan and Ron Dellums of California are seen as almost anti-American in nature, hence politically limited.

In other words, high blacks in a Carter administration would probably be as inoffensive as high whites, perhaps more so. Jordan could get away with some finger wagging, and proper civil liberty principles would be allowed. But as his predecessors, a President Carter would be careful to keep "Nat Turner Negroism" from his sanctum.

So it is that Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles could prosper with Carter. And Vernon Jordan of the Urban League. And others whose names are now unknown. The black forest is full of straight-up timber, overripe for harvest after all these centuries. Rap Brown need not apply.

This discrimination aside, though, blacks in the White House may soon have other responsibilities than serving food.

Opening lead — K

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is another hand from the ABTA quarterly. According to Betty Lind, her daughter sitting East opened with a psychic bid of one spade. Betty bid two spades and West got into the act by trying four spades. For some reason or other North didn't double, but when Betty bid five hearts North raised her to six. Betty ruffed the spade lead high and counted 11 easy tricks. She decided to try for the 12th by means of a trump coup. At trick two Betty led a low trump to dummy's eight to guard against a 4-0 trump break which would spoil the potential dummy reversal. Once both opponents followed the rest was easy. She ruffed a second spade high, entered dummy with the king of clubs, ruffed a third spade high, entered dummy with the queen of diamonds, ruffed the last spade, led her last trump to overtake in dummy, discarded one club on dummy's last trump and was held to six when East kept a diamond stopper. A nice hand but to forestall some of our scientific readers, we will mention that the hand can also be made by letting the defense hold one spade trick and developing a squeeze.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine reader wants to know what a "Free" double means. It is a term misapplied to a double of a game bid. The idea is that it doesn't cost you anything if your opponent makes his contract and this is entirely correct. Although it doesn't cost you as much as does an unsuccessful double of a part-score contract of two hearts or higher.

Domestic person not a 'dumbbell'

Dear Ann: I read with great interest and mounting blood pressure the letter from the person who employs a "dumbbell" to do her ironing, although she did say that she was a nice person. Wasn't that sweet of her?

I have worked as a domestic in a household for several years, and if asked what qualifications you need to be able to do this type of work, I would say — a degree in practically everything from psychology to nursing. Also you should have your own teeth, because you will be grinding them a lot.

You will be working for women and men who don't have one ounce of common sense, but are authorities on absolutely everything. They consider themselves BPs (Beautiful People). But the abbreviation really stands for Bitchy Phonies because that's what most of them are. P.S. If you think this letter is rough, you should see the ones I tore up. — Another Dumbbell

Dear Friend: Willie Washington is a wonderful woman who has done housework for me for 20 years. I read her your letter and asked for a comment. Willie said, "That woman is not going to like anybody she works for because she is mad at the whole world, including herself."

Dear Ann Landers: Please reassure "Newcomer From the Old Country" that not all Americans are so crude and inquisitive about funerals as her friends and relatives. Questions asked: "Was it big?" "Did anyone faint?" My husband and I agreed six years ago that our funerals would be simple, and even a little joyous.

When he died unexpectedly three months ago, I kept my word. I asked the funeral director to bury my darling in the red golf suit he loved so much. Friends and relatives on both sides thought it was just lovely. These days, when the funeral industry is under attack, my advice is to find a funeral director who will let you do exactly as you please. — A Recent Widow

Dear Widow: I second the motion. And may I add, most funeral directors are extremely cooperative. If you encounter one who is not, go elsewhere.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 18-year-old girl who knows that you believe nothing is so destructive to a woman's skin as the sun. But I have a very white complexion and am embarrassed when I'm around girls who have gorgeous tans.

I've tried getting a little color by sunning just a little. It doesn't work. I get splotchy and look like a freak.

Is there anything I can do to get a tan so I won't feel ashamed and look so sickly? — Snow White

Dear Snow: Use sun-tan makeup. Skillfully applied, it looks like the real thing. When summer is over take some makeup lessons and learn how to enhance your fair complexion — which many women would give their eye teeth for.

Dear Ann Landers: As a person who must diet for the rest of my life, I'd like to comment on the hostess who was mad because most of her guests ate very little and passed up her dessert.

Dieters should explain the situation to the hostess and ask her to keep their problem in mind when she cooks. Or they should bring their own food. I do the latter and no one is ever offended. Pass it along, will you, Ann? — Former Fatty

Dear F.F.: Suggestion number two is O.K. if you tell the hostess in advance. But to expect her to prepare a separate meal is, in my opinion, inconsiderate.

Nannie Shields

INDEPENDENCE — Nannie Waddell Shield, 76, a resident of Nichols Nursing Home here, died Thursday at the Osteopathic Hospital, Kansas City.

She was born July 4, 1900, at Gladstone, Mo., daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Fortune Chapman. She was married in 1917 to J.H. Waddell, who died in 1955.

Survivors include two sons, John D. Waddell, Kansas City; William Waddell, Pittsburgh, Pa.; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Scrivner Chapel, Versailles, with the Rev. Robert Sheagley officiating.

Burial will be in Versailles Cemetery. Friends may call after 5 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Mrs. Lois C. Smith

Funeral services for Mrs. Lois Catherine Smith, 83, Route 2, who died at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at Bothwell Hospital, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Heckart-Gillespie Colonial Chapel with the Rev. Orval Woolery officiating.

Pallbearers will be Max Coble, James C. Duzan, Walter Lemler, Gib Owen, F. H. Rush, and L.G. Whitfield.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Base closing looms with upheld veto

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The demobilization of Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base and its multimillion-dollar loss to the economy of the Kansas City area loomed nearer Thursday with the Senate's failure to override President Ford's veto of the military construction bill.

The House had voted to override, 270 to 131, four votes more than necessary, but the Senate vote, 51 to 42, fell short of the required two-thirds, allowing the veto to stand.

A section of the bill, if the veto had been overridden, would have required a ninemonth congressional review of any base closing, after which Congress would have had 90 more days to decide on justification.

The Air Force has proposed reducing Richards-Gebaur to a standby basis of about 350 to 400 personnel. Approximately 4,300 persons now man the 2,400-acre base on the south edge of Kansas City. Of those, about 1,900 are civilian personnel and 2,400 military personnel.

The Air Force proposes transferring the Air Force Communications Service and its associated functions from Richards-Gebaur to Scott Air Force Base near Belleville, Ill., a St. Louis suburb.

The transfer was stalled last year when a federal judge, in response to a request by opponents of the move, ordered the Air Force to file an environmental impact statement, which was delivered in June.

Its environmental report said the reduction of Richards-Gebaur would have an insignificant socio-economic effect on the area, which Kansas City and its environs dispute.

Missing girl is back with family

After being gone for two weeks, Joyce Kinner, 17, 703 West Seventh, was back home Thursday with her family.

Mrs. Robert Kinner told The Democrat-Capital Thursday that her daughter called Wednesday evening and asked her parents to come and get her. She had been staying with some people "about half way between Topeka and Kansas City" in Kansas.

Miss Kinner was last seen about 8:30 p.m. July 7 when she was picked up in front of her home and rode away in a grey Camero. Police and other law enforcement agencies have been investigating her disappearance since that time.

Mrs. Kinner said her daughter was in good health except for a cold.

Joyce had not tried to contact anyone in Sedalia during her absence, Mrs. Kinner said. Nor had she been working, except to do some babysitting.

Mrs. Kinner said that Joyce told her she would have called earlier but did not have any money.

FDA warns of hazards in use of drugs during pregnancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration warned doctors Thursday that some of the best-selling tranquilizers on the market may cause birth defects if taken by women during the first three months of pregnancy.

The FDA ordered the drug manufacturers to write new label warnings on their products within 60 days, advising physicians of the possible hazard, or face the threat of having the tranquilizers taken off the market.

The order applies to the group of drugs known as benzodiazepines, the best known of which are Valium and Librium, and the drug meprobamate, sold under such trade names as Miltown and Equanil.

Valium is the most-prescribed drug in the United States and Librium ranks in the top ten. Both are products of Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. which disputed the basis for the FDA action.

Vandals strike Municipal airport

Vandals broke 28 runway and tee lightbulbs at Sedalia Municipal Airport sometime overnight Wednesday, it was reported to police. Jim Abbas, airport manager, reported the bulbs were valued at $125.

Carol Knight, 1112 Ware Ave., reported the theft of $40 in cigarettes and clothing from her car between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday while it was parked at McGraw-Edison Co., 305 North State Fair Blvd. Knight reported the car was not locked.

Mrs. Robert L. Horton, Kansas City, reported the theft of a gray suitcase from her car June 7, while was parked at Burger Chef, 2909 West Broadway. The suitcase and its contents were valued at $97.50. Horton reported her car was locked, but the windows were rolled down about two inches.

Police were still investigating Thursday night the theft of almost $500 worth of tools and a tool box from the home of Everett Pottorff, 816 East 16th. Pottorff told police he left his home about 5 p.m. Wednesday and returned, at 10 p.m. to find the items were missing.

Rival Mfg. plans move of operations here

KANSAS CITY — Officials of the Rival Manufacturing Co. say the last of its manufacturing departments will be moved from Kansas City to Sedalia, probably before February.

Plant manager Lou White said about 80 diecasting employees would lose their jobs in the move. He said they may apply for work in Sedalia, but no provisions have been made for them to receive preferential treatment.

Vice president of manufacturing Bill Tweed said in Sedalia that most of the diecasting jobs would probably be absorbed by the current Sedalia staff.

He said the Kansas City diecasting machinery will likely be shipped to Sedalia, but that some new machinery might be purchased. The diecasting operation will be housed in the current Sedalia plant at 16th and Lamine, he said.

"We are convinced Valium is safe," a Hoffmann-La Roche spokesman said, adding that the FDA announcement was "a clear distortion of the facts."

The FDA said three recent studies indicated that there might be an association between use of the tranquilizers in early pregnancy, and congenital malformations such as cleft lip in babies.

"These studies do not demonstrate conclusively that these drugs, taken during early pregnancy, can cause cleft lip or other birth defects," Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said in a statement.

"But use of these tranquilizers during pregnancy is rarely a matter of urgency, and their use during this time should almost always be avoided," he added.

Multitude of problems beset Viking 1 on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Special round-the-clock teams of scientists and engineers attacked a barrage of problems in the Viking probe of Mars late Thursday, including a problem that could delay the gathering of Martian soil samples.

Viking project manager James Martin said a series of commands were sent to the Viking lander's soil sampler — the instrument designed to reach out and scoop up a piece of Mars to search for living organisms. But he said some of those commands were not executed properly.

"Seventeen commands were sent to the Viking lander ordering the scoop to shed its protective shroud, lift and place itself on a stand atop the lander," Martin said.

He said the sampler emerged from its protective shroud but in repositioning itself became stuck.

Martin said a team of special engineers immediately went to work on the problem.

Earlier, Martin said that other such teams had been gathered to confront problems involving the lander, including a weakened radio signal and a malfunctioning seismometer.

The diecasting machinery produces aluminum and zinc parts used in slicers, grinders and other products.

The company's headquarters and central warehouse would remain here and provide jobs for the 50 workers in shipping and receiving and 200 in the corporate offices.

Officials say one reason for the move is convenience. I.H. Miller, Rival president, said transportation costs and production delays can be eliminated by making the diecasting parts in Sedalia, rather than making them in Kansas City and shipping them to Sedalia, as is done now.

In addition, Miller says machinists in the Sedalia plant are paid less than those in the Kansas City plant. Rival is the manufacturer of Crock Pot slow cookers.

"The warning label we are now requiring will provide physicians with the information they need to prescribe these drugs safely."

The Hoffmann-La Roche spokesman said some of the studies cited by the FDA were more than a year old, and that newer studies published in the British medical journal Lancet and the New England Journal of Medicine had cleared the bezodiazepines of suspicion.

The drugs are prescribed for millions of persons for relief of anxiety and tension. The Hoffmann-La Roche spokesman said some also are prescribed as a muscle relaxant and antiepileptic drug and that alternative prescription products for those purposes have a stronger association with birth defects.

Martin said signals from the lander to its orbiting mother ship were coming in considerably weaker than they have been since the lander touched down on Mars last Tuesday.

It is believed the transmitter on the lander is operating on a lower wattage than it was programmed for.

Although he said the mission was in no immediate danger because of the problem, the loss of one of the lander's two transmitters could eventually cause the loss of data from the surface.

One malfunction that may hamper scientific investigation of the planet is the apparent loss of the seismometer, the device designed to locate and measure marsquakes.

"The seismometer is currently not working because they can't succeed in their attempts to uncage it (release it from the case designed to protect the device during landing and takeoff)," said Dr. Thomas Mutch, who heads the team that interprets the pictures from Mars.

"But that does not mean they can't succeed in their attempts to uncage it. I think it is premature to write off the seismometer."
